Mansfield Motorcyclist, Girl Killed In Crash

PAIR THROWN 50 FEET INTO SIDE OF STORE

Collision With Auto North of Mt. Vernon Takes Life of Robert Wolfe, 25.

AUTOIST ESCAPES INJURY

Fredericktown Girl, 21, Other Victim of Accident; 17 Others Die in State.

A speeding motorcycle hurled Robert Wolfe, 25, of Mansfield, and his companion, Miss Louise Champion, 21, of Fredericktown to instant death at 4:20 p. m. Sunday on route 3 at Academia, two miles north of Mt. Vernon.

Other week-end accidents brought death to at least 17 persons in Ohio, 12 of whom drowned while seeking relief from the 90-degree heat. Richland county escaped with but two minor accidents, injuring two persons, neither seriously.

Crashes Into Machine.

Wolfe, who was the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Wolfe, 485 Bowman street, and Miss Champion, were thrown 50 feet into the side of a store building when the motorcycle on which they were riding collided with an automobile driven by L. W. Scott, a farmer of near Gambier.

Both Wolfe and Miss Champion suffered fractured skulls. Their bodies were badly mangled. Scott, driver of the automobile, was not hurt. Miss Champion was riding behind Wolfe on the motorcycle.

Auto Leaving Fairground.

Officers said the cycle crashed into the side of Scott's car which was driven onto the highway from the Knox county fairgrounds. Witnesses said the motorcycle apparently was traveling about 65 miles an hour at the time of the crash.

Miss Champion's brother was killed three years ago in a railroad crossing accident in Fredericktown.

Wolfe formerly was employed at the Westinghouse plant in Mansfield, but recently had been working in Fredericktown.

He was a member of St. John's Evangelical church. Besides his parents, he is survived by a sister, Mrs. Taylor Mast; a brother, Paul, and his grandmother, Mrs. Caroline Brubach, all of Mansfield.

Funeral services will be held at

DIZ TO PITCH

Wrigley Orders Dean to Take Mound 'Within a Week.'

CHICAGO—(AP)—Owner Phil K. Wrigley of the Chicago Cubs today ordered Dizzy Dean to "be ready to pitch within a week." Dean, who has been out of action for more than two months with an ailing arm, told his boss he was "ready to go."

Wrigley said he was calling Dean back to work for the Cubs regardless of any further reports of physicians who have been working on his ailing right arm.

"We didn't need Dean during the first part of the season, but we do now and I'm going on my own report of his condition and put him to work," Wrigley said.

VOTE TO SELL

Tennessee Stockholders Would Transfer Utility to TVA.

AUGUSTA, Me.—(UP)—Stockholders of the Tennessee Public Service company today voted to sell all the company's electric properties except certain transmission lines to the city of Knoxville and the Tennessee Valley Authority.

QUEEN MARIE ILL

King Carol Prepares to Rush to Mother's Bedside.

BUCHAREST, Roumania—(UP)—King Carol prepared today to rush to the bedside of his mother, Dowager Queen Marie, seriously ill in a sanitorium near Dresden, Germany.

From Dresden came reports that the queen's condition had grown worse. She is suffering from a liver ailment. She intended to take a holiday in Italy, but her condition would not permit it.

King George III

King George was on a milk diet today, fighting an attack of gastric influenza which sent him to bed at the royal lodge at Windsor. An official bulletin issued by Lord Dawson of Penn and Sir John, physicians in ordinary to the king, announced the illness last night: "The king is suffering a mild attack of gastric influenza which will necessitate a rest for the next few days," the bulletin said.

BARS DOWN IN PROBE OF TVA

Donahey, Opening Inquiry, Says Humblest to Highest, Can Testify on Stand.

(By International News Service)

KNOXVILLE, Tenn.—The investigation into the New Deal's half-billion dollar Tennessee Valley Authority today was thrown open to "any one from the humblest citizen to the highest utility executive" who wants to testify.

As the five senators and five representatives comprising the congressional investigating committee assembled here for the opening of the probe this morning, Senator Vic Donahey (D) of Ohio, chairman of the committee, declared:

"Hearings will be open to any one from the highest utility executive to the humblest citizen, who may want to offer germane facts for or against the TVA."

A major portion of the investigation, which may take weeks, was expected to be focused on the fight in the inner councils of the TVA which led President Roosevelt to oust Dr. Arthur A. Morgan, chairman of the TVA, last March.

Dr. Morgan last week, on the eve of the probe, filed a suit in County Chancery court here alleging the right of the president to oust him, and demanding reinstatement and back pay.

Today's meeting of the investigating committee was to be devoted entirely to organization details. Tomorrow, members of the committee will start on a six-day tour of all the TVA projects, including the gigantic hydroelectric power plants and fertilizer plants.

CUTS OFF BIT OF FINGER, IT BRINGS ARREST

Tiny Piece of Flesh Found on Window After Robbery of Club Snares Suspect.

DOCTOR FITS IT BACK ON

Perfect Match With Injured Member Brings Confession; Police Draw Charge.

A clue of the kind you read about in detective story magazines led police today to what they believe is the solution of the attempted robbery of the Elks club Saturday night.

Police were holding a colored man, an employe of the club, and said a charge of breaking and entering would be drawn against him.

Here's the unusual story:

William Bell, custodian of the club, reported to police at 11:30 p. m. Saturday, a half hour after the club had been closed, that the quarters had been broken into.

Finds Tip of Finger.

E. C. Fuller, identification officer, went to investigate.

On a window sill in the rear of the club, Fuller found a tiny bit of flesh—the tip of a finger, which had been sliced off, apparently, in breaking the window.

Fuller found that nothing had been taken from the club, but circumstances indicated that the attempted robbery was an "inside job."

This morning, Detectives Lee J. Remy and Oscar Krupp picked up a 28-year-old colored man, employed by the club. He had an injured index finger of his right hand.

The suspect was questioned, but denied any knowledge of the attempted robbery of the club.

Alibi Fails.

He claimed that he had suffered his injury changing a tire.

Dr. Baird fished the tiny bit of flesh from the alcohol bottle, and—

You've guessed it.

"It's a perfect match," Dr. Baird reported, "and it's this man's flesh."

At that point the suspect broke down and admitted that he had entered the club shortly after it had closed. He said he had ransacked the place, but had taken nothing, and had failed to pry open a vending machine.

STEEL PICKS UP

Output to Jump 9.9 Points This Week, Institute Says.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Operations in the steel industry for the current week will advance 9.9 points to 32.3 per cent of capacity, compared with 22.4 per cent last week, the American Iron & Steel Institute estimated today. Operations were the highest since the week of April 18 when the rate was 32.4.

A month ago operations were at the rate of 27.1 per cent of capacity, while a year ago they were 82.7 per cent.

The rebound was said in trade circles to have been substantially greater than a normal seasonal recovery from the previous holiday week. This was the result largely of further clarification of the new pricing policy instituted two weeks ago by the industry, these observers said.

Capital Observers Predicting Wagner as Cardozo Successor

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Capital speculation over a successor to Supreme Court Justice Benjamin N. Cardozo, who died Saturday after a long illness, centered today on two possible courses:

1. President Roosevelt might select Senator Robert F. Wagner (D., N. Y.) or some other New Yorker, because the late justice was a resident of that state.

2. He might appoint a resident of the far west, because that region is not represented on the court.

There is, of course, no requirement that the president follow either of those courses. In any event, he probably will make no appointment before fall, for the court is in recess until October.

The few political leaders remaining in Washington's midsummer heat agreed that Mr. Roosevelt undoubtedly would choose a man of the same liberal views as the 68-year-old Cardozo.

The appointment will be Mr. Roosevelt's third to the high court. Justices Van Devanter and Sutherland, both of whom had opposed many administration measures, retired from active service, and the president replaced them with Hugo L. Black of Alabama and Stanley F. Reed of Kentucky.

PORT CHESTER, N. Y.—(UP)—A quiet funeral, attended by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, three supreme court justices and relatives and close friends, will be held today for Associate Justice Benjamin N. Cardozo, who died of heart disease Saturday night at the home of Judge Irving Lehman of the New York court of appeals. He was 68.

Millionaire Flies as He Pleases But Gets Facts

'Mystery Man,' Who Spanned Atlantic, Regards Risking Neck As Strictly Private Affair, Writer Finds.

By DEVON FRANCIS
(Associated Press Aviation Editor)

NEW YORK—If thin, wiry Howard Robard Hughes, the millionaire now turned transatlantic flier, cares what other people think of him, he has never shown it during his 34 years.

Hughes announced he was going to fly the Atlantic. Why, was his business. A few years ago he was making hit movies. He abandoned Hollywood. That was his business, too.

A year ago last January he streaked across the United States to set a speed record which has never been approached—7 hours, 28 minutes. Crawling from his ship, he was courteous, tolerant, uninformative.

He merely wanted to do it. If a man wanted to risk a neck valued at several millions, it was his affair.

He Took It Up.

His few intimates deny he is a blue chip playboy. Whatever he is, he does what pleases his fancy, with a courage and energy which set him apart.

"Better let someone else take that plane up," Dick Palmer, who built his "Hughes special" racer, advised the flier in 1936.

"No," responded Hughes. "I had confidence enough in you to have

FACE THREAT OF LOCAL OPTION

Night Clubs Move to Obtain Longer Hours Brings Protest From Rev. Swoyer.

Opposition to the attempt of Mansfield liquor retailers to obtain an extension in hours—in the form of a demand for a local option election—had arisen today.

It was voiced by Rev. Grover E. Swoyer, pastor of the First English Lutheran church, who said he would advocate and work for a local option election, which would ask Mansfielders to go to the polls to determine whether the city should be "wet" or "dry"—in the event places selling liquor are successful in obtaining an extension of hours.

A committee from the Richland County Permit Holders association last week submitted a petition to city council, asking that they be allowed to remain open until 1:30 a. m. every day except Sunday, if they have either a D-3A or D-5 (night club) permit. They are now closing at 1 a. m. on week-days and midnight on Saturdays. They claim that with those hours they are not able to make a reasonable return on their investment, and point out that their hours are almost as the same as places having less expensive permits.

Rev. Swoyer preceded his Sunday night sermon last evening with his remarks on the proposal for extended hours.

Referring to liquor sales after proposing the local option vote last night, he said: "Evil is like a serpent; we can keep it down for a while, but it comes right back and we must fight it all over again."

He elaborated on his proposed campaign today, that "Ohio is becoming dry again as rural sections vote out the sale of liquor, forcing it into the cities, and it is time to begin a fight against it here."

He followed his demand for local option with a lecture on "Sin and Suffering."

NONCHALANCE

Turkey Kills Rattler Without Leaving Her Nest.

PUEBLO, Colo.—(AP)—A snake is just another petty annoyance to Jack Gucciona's turkey hen.

When a rattler intruded on her privacy she killed it without even leaving the nest of eggs upon which she was setting. Gucciona said she pecked the snake's head to pieces.

SLAYER SUSPECT HELD

JEFFERSON, O.—(INS)—Steve Kovalcik, 22, of Geneva, was held in county jail today pending his trial Aug. 1 on a charge of first-degree murder in the slaying of Walter Kangas, Geneva farmer.

IN DANGER ZONE

U. S. Warships in Path of Jap Bombers Near Kiukang.

SHANGHAI—(UP)—The United States gunboat Monocacy lay in the path of Japanese bombing planes today as Japanese infantry drove within 135 miles of Hankow, China's interior capital.

With 46 officers and seamen aboard, the Monocacy was about three miles above Kiukang which the Japanese were shelling in preparation for a siege.

Japanese naval authorities said that the gunboat had attempted to move far above Kiukiang and get clear of the danger zone, but was forced to turn back because of Chinese mines in the Yangtse river.

Then, according to the Japanese the Monocacy anchored three miles above Kiukiang, the next objective in Japan's march on the capital.

PAROLE BOARD AT REFORMATORY

Members to Inquire Into Merits of Cases of 298 Inmates.

The cases of 298 inmates of the Mansfield reformatory were to go before the Ohio board of parole as it convenes at the institution today.

Supt. Arthur L. Glattke said the cases were all from the reformatory proper, and that none were from the various honor camps.

All members of the board are here for the session. They are H. W. Jewell, Delaware, chairman; Craig N. McBride, Hillsboro; Frank T. Sotak, Cleveland, and Bishop Reverdy C. Ranson, Xenia.

KILLED BY BOLT

BATAVIA—(INS)—Dead from a bolt of lightning the body of Charles Scheerier, 65, was found under a tree near Laurel. Coroner Sam White reported today. Scheerer's dog was keeping watch at his dead master's side.

Cites Causes For Dirlam Plane Crash

Federal Bureau Blames Wind Change, Confusion of Pilot for Tragedy.

A change in the wind and confusion on the part of the pilot—these were the causes established by the federal bureau of air commerce today for the plane crash on March 1 in which J. Tracy Dirlam and his sister, Mary Lou, of Mansfield, were killed in the bleak mountains of California.

The bureau's report said that there had been a sudden rise in wind velocity and a change in direction. It also found that the pilot, John D. Graves, had become confused in his location with regard to the Fresno radio beam.

It was when he attempted to turn back toward Fresno, the board reported, that the huge TWA liner crashed into the side of Buena Vista peak, near Wawona, Cal., carrying the Dirlams and seven other persons on the plane to their deaths.

Bodies Found In June.

Bodies of the victims were not found—despite unrelenting search—until June 12, a month ago yesterday, when a youthful Californian, on a vacation, followed a "hunch" and found the wrecked plane and the bodies of the victims.

The "hunch" player was H. O. Collier, 23, a weigher for a Fresno packing company, on vacation.

Pack trains ascended the mountain and brought the bodies of the victims down. The bodies of J. Tracy and Mary Lou—killed on their way home to be with their dying father, the late Jay N. Dirlam—were cremated in Fresno, and their ashes brought back to Mansfield for interment by their mother, Mrs. Rachel Dirlam.

Here is the verbatim report of the bureau's findings:

"It is the opinion of the investigating board that the probable cause of the accident was a change in wind direction and a sharp increase in volicity, unknown to the pilot. Together with the pilot's confusion as to his position with reference to the Fresno radio range station, which combined to bring about flight over mountainous terrain, ending in a crash at near his reported cruising altitude."

WPA SPEEDS UP WOODLAND JOB

Crew to Be Increased to 150 on Wednesday; 350 at Work on Road, Bridge Project.

Operations on Mansfield's only WPA project, the $75,000 Woodland water improvement, was speeded up today as 50 more men were assigned to the project.

City officials said that another 50 would be placed on the job Wednesday, increasing the crew to 150. The project is scheduled to be completed in four months.

In the meantime approximately 350 are at work on the county's $1,000,000 WPA road and bridge program. Most of these men are employed on the North Bowman street road project. Another 100 men is expected to be employed this week as the project is extended into Washington township.

On the Woodland improvement the workmen were engaged in laying a trench on Cook road from the reservoir to Lexington avenue as the first step in the construction of a 20-inch main that will be laid on Cook road and Lexington avenue. The line is designed to bolster the water pressure in the mercantile area.

Contracts are expected to be awarded the latter part of this month for the construction of a tank tower and booster bumps at the reservoir in order to complete the job and increase the pressure in that area.

HEAT STILL ON

It's Due to Stay, Too, Says Forecast for Tuesday.

A short but heavy rain early today did little to alleviate the heat that has been Mansfield's lot for the past week, as the mercury climbed from a low of 68 to 83 at noon today, and gave promise of going higher.

Nor was there anything in the forecast that sounded like relief. The prediction said "Fair tonight and Tuesday, little change in temperature."

Sunday's high was 88, and so was Saturday's. The average for the past 48 hours was 75.5, slightly above normal for the period.

POLICE KILL FUGITIVE

DAYTON—(AP)—Patrolmen G. F. Baumgardner and E. L. Kenney, who shot and killed Jack Francis, colored, said today the man failed to halt his automobile at their command, and later abandoned his car and was shot as he fled on foot.

Congressmen, Senators Hang On Coast-Bound Special Train

(By Associated Press)

FORT WORTH, Tex.—Rested by "a nice, quiet family day" at this one-time frontier outpost, President Roosevelt routed his train through the Texas panhandle today bound for the Pacific coast.

He arranged three platform appearances enroute to Amarillo, scene of his biggest speech of the day. Arrangements called for a parade from the train to Elwood park in Amarillo.

Taking with him Sen. Tom Connally, Gov. James V. Allred and a group of Texas congressmen, the president agreed to talk briefly to station crowds at Wichita Falls, Childress and Clarendon.

Wichita Falls is in the district of Rep. W. D. McFarlane, one of the president's train party for this portion of his trans-continental speaking and sightseeing journey. Amarillo, Childress and Clarendon are in the district of Rep. Marvin Jones, chairman of the house agriculture committee, who also came here to ride with Mr. Roosevelt.

All the representatives are seeking re-election.

The president in an extemporaneous radio address to Texans last evening hinted that his remarks in this state would lack the political significance of earlier speeches in Ohio, Kentucky, Arkansas and Oklahoma.

In those states, Mr. Roosevelt gave indications he wished the renomination of Sens. Robert J. Bulkley, Alben W. Barkley, Hattie W. Caraway and Elmer Thomas. Texas has no senatorial election this year.

The president's friendly radio talk suggested the Lone Star state

CUTS LINDY'S OCEAN FLYING TIME IN HALF

AVERAGES 200 MILES P. H.

Speed Record Made on 1st Leg of Expected World Flight in Giant Plane.

BULLETIN

LE BOURGET AIRPORT, France.—(U.P.)—At 7 p. m. tonight (1 p. m. EST) Howard Hughes ordered his airplane taken into a hangar for repair of radio equipment. It was said this might take several hours and delay the start of his flight to Moscow.

(By International News Service)

LE BOURGET AIRPORT, Paris—In less than half the time it took Col. Charles A. Lindbergh to do it, Howard Hughes, and four flying companions made aviation history today with a non-stop flight from New York to Paris.

Completing the first leg of what may prove to be a record-breaking flight around the world, Hughes set his giant silver monoplane down on Le Bourget air field at 4:55 p. m. Paris time 10:55 a. m. EST).

He had taken off from Floyd Bennett airport, New York, at 6:20 p. m. EST yesterday.

16 Hours, 35 Minutes.

The Giant plane, christened New York World's Fair 1939, made the 3,610-mile flight across the ocean from New York to the French capital in 16 hours and 35 minutes.

In May of 1927, just a little more than 11 years ago, Col. Lindbergh made this self-same flight in 33 hours and a half. Hughes' sleek "racing transport" averaged better than 200 miles an hour for the journey.

Save for a brief period in mid-ocean when he feared his gasoline supply might fail, Hughes was confident throughout he would achieve his aim by duplicating Lindbergh's New York-Paris flight for the first time with the added glory of a speed record that promises to stand for years.

Through fog and occasional rain, Hughes piloted the great silver ship on a bee-line across Ireland, southern England and then into France, crossing the coast only a comparatively few miles from the island of Illiec off Brittany, where Lindbergh now lives in seclusion with his family and his scientific experiments.

Thousands At Airport.

Hughes smashed record after record as he piloted his huge ship over the trackless ocean wastes. His average speed was computed in excess of 205 miles an hour.

'Love In Danger,' New Serial, Begins On Page 2 Today

There's nothing like a good mystery story for summer reading, which is the principal reason why The News-Journal has selected Kathryn Bemis' "Love In Danger" for its next serial.

It's another 15-installment story—short and concise, crowding all the action of a full length novel into a little more than two weeks publication.

"Love In Danger" combines romance, mystery and the thrill of unseen danger. The action revolves around a pretty girl and the most eligible bachelor in town; pearl necklaces that disappear at private parties, the murder of a society matron, and the appearance in town of a handsome detective who is unorthodox to tap a pretty girl on the shoulder and enlist her aid in spying on her companions.

The new short serial, by the author of "Adventure In Love" opens on Page 2 of today's News-Journal.

There's No Way to Force Man to Care

By VIRGINIA LEE

A girl asks me how she can attract the young man who interests her very much. "I have been out in his company several times, but he does not seem to show me any attention," she writes. "Could you please tell me how I can make this young man care for me?"

There just isn't any answer, in this case. I don't know the girl. Her letter tells me nothing except her age and her love for the man. Maybe she is the kind of girl who doesn't attract any male. More probably she simply doesn't interest this particular youth.

If he could be forced by circumstances to be constantly in her company, not only in their leisure time but all the time—such as living in the same house—she might be able to show him that she is such a nice girl, so companionable, fair-minded and square, that he would grow to care for her. Propinquity does a great deal for young folk. If a girl has admirable qualities they show in her day by day life. Her faults show up too. I think I have told before in this column of the young couple I know — now happily married and parents—who were not at all attracted to each other at first. Circumstances, however, threw them together so that each learned the other's worth. She was an ordinary looking girl until you knew her, and then you grew to think she was beautiful. He was just a good looking, jolly kid, "kind to his mother" and all that—but not remarkable for his charm until you knew him through daily association.

Shows Faults, Too.

Of course that sort of thing shows up one's faults, too, and may prove a person to be an utterly undesirable companion. There is that chance, so you have to be pretty good to "stand the gaff."

Possibly John Beeckman's hint to the woman who wants to attract a specific male will be helpful to this girl: John wrote an entertaining little book awhile back called, "Ladies, I Give You—the Way to His Heart."

"If you want to capture a specific male," says this expert, "the more of a social success you are, the more chances you will have of meeting one who is worth capturing."

So, my dear, after all this talk, try to be a "social success," which means as good looking as your physiognomy permits, as jolly and sympathetic as your nature will allow, and generally interested in your fellow humans. I can advise you no better.

If serving iced tea it is a good idea to freeze iced tea into cubes which can be used later to chill the beverage. The same rule holds for iced coffee. The beverages then will not be weakened by iced water cubes.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

AS I HAD hoped, my mention of a romp with Dicky, following my promise to take the small boys for a day and night sojourn in the city to visit with Mary and "see the sights" effectually banished Roderick's tragic dolor excited by the realization that his brothers were to see their idolized sister upon the next day while he would be compelled to stay at home.

"Oh! let's hurry!" he pleaded feverishly, and I smiled at him as I opened the door and "shooed" him out of it.

"Run along with you," I told him, and knew with relief as he scudded back to the library that he would grieve no more about being left out of the morrow's trip to the city.

I heard him accosting Dicky eagerly as soon as he entered the library, and by the time I reached the room, he and Junior were jubilantly making their way with Dicky to the lawn outside.

Katherine, the only one left in the living room, swept me a low, mocking obeisance.

"Your brow is absolutely silvered—or gilded—with haloes," she said. "How ever did you do it?"

Didn't Set Date.

"Promised him something that I am afraid I can't carry out," I said despondently. "I told him I would bring him and Junior to the city—and Mary's hotel—for a day and a night as soon as I possibly could."

"And so you can," she said comfortably, although I was sure that her lips had pursed themselves for a low whistle of dismayed astonishment. "You haven't set any especial date, and you'll be able to manage it somehow."

"I hope so," I returned, then glanced around the empty room. Katherine answered the query I did not put.

"Mother Graham is still upstairs, and Bill, I presume, is deciding which neckties he will take. At his age that is a vital problem, you know."

"And Hank?" I asked, smiling.

"I parked him on the couch in your room," she answered.

"Asleep?" I asked, giving an anxious thought to the awakening for his journey which the boy must take in so short a time.

"I don't think so. Of course, I didn't give him a strong enough sedative to put him to sleep; just enough to slow him down a bit—he's pretty strung up over this. But if he lies still—and he promised me he would—he ought to be in fair shape by the time Dicky starts. I suppose that will be as soon as the small boys go to bed."

I nodded, miserably, and she flashed a sympathetic look at me.

"I gather he isn't going to tell them that he's going tonight."

"No, he isn't," I answered.

"And what a nice bag for your holding that's going to be!" she said with suppressed indignation in her voice. "Well! there's only one thing to do. Stage something so absorbing for them in the morning as soon as they get up that they'll forget everything else."

"There's only one answer to that," I told her. "Jerry Ticer."

She smiled quick assent.

"If he's only planned to go for wood tomorrow with those two spavined old nags of his," she ruminated, "the set-up will be perfect."

"He doesn't know it," I retorted, "but that's what he's going to plan in a minute or two."

I rose abruptly, went to the telephone and called the Ticer farmhouse. Mrs. Ticer answered.

"Well! if I'm not glad to hear your voice!" she exclaimed in cheery greeting. "Jerry said you were here, and I've been hoping all day I'd see you."

"I haven't had a minute," I told her truthfully. "I'll try to run in a minute or two anyway before I go back. Just now, I want to ask you what Jerry is planning to do tomorrow."

"Nothing that he can't change if you want something," she averred with heart-warming promptness.

THEATER

Like Father, Like Son.

Douglas Fairbanks, jr., is a younger edition of his father Doug, sr., who, before he went romancing, was one of the greatest of picture stars, and in "Having a Wonderful Time," there are times when it is difficult to remember which of the Fairbanks is in the picture. Young Doug has developed into a very good actor and he shows a flair for comedy in this picture in which he co-stars with Ginger Rogers. He is just as dashing and gay a figure as his father, without the penchant for jumping over chairs and things. He and Miss Rogers swing through a gay, carefree romance, seasoned with jealousy and squabbles, at a summer camp. The cast includes such capable players as Peggy Conklin, Lucille Ball, Lee Bowman, Dorothea Kent and Red Skelton. The picture is at the Ohio.

Sermon in Pictures.

A well worn, but worthwhile philosophy, teaching humanity to fight obstacles, handicaps, disappointments and sorrow, not with its fists, but with the ability to rise above circumstances, is the theme which permeates the whole of Warner Brothers picture "White Banners," based on Lloyd Douglas' popular novel. The screen version is the current attraction at the Madison. This particular code of life is taught in the story, not by a man, nor a great philosopher, but by a woman, a humble servant in a household. To that extent the theme is remindful of the old play, "Passing of The Third Floor Back." Fay Bainter plays Hannah, who comes into the Ward home as the humblest of servants and changes the whole picture of the home and the lives in it. Claude Rains, Jackie Cooper, Bonita Granville, Kay Johnson and Jackie Cooper are the major players.

All-Comedy Bill.

One of the dizziest comedies of the past season was "Nothing Sacred", in which Frederic March played a New York newspaper man, and Carole Lombard a small town New Englander. The newspaper man's big scoop, designed to get him back his job, is that of a beautiful girl who is believed to have only a few months to live; he brings her to New York City for one grand spree before the date of her supposed death, and thereby hangs a tale of one of the greatest hoaxes ever perpetrated on an unsuspecting public. The Ritz bill for the middle of the week, starting tomorrow, is all comedy, for the second feature is "Manhattan Merry-Go-Round", with a long list of screen and radio stars. Among them are Phil Regan, Leo Carrillo, Ann Dvorak, Tamara, Gene Autry, Ted Lewis and his band, Cab Calloway and his Cotton Club orchestra and a number of others.

Crosby and Fields.

A re-issue of "Mississippi" brings W. C. Fields, Bing Crosby, Joan Bennett, Gail Patrick and the Cabin Kids to the Majestic for three days, starting Tuesday. This is the Booth Tarkington novel, "The Fighting Coward," changed considerably, satirized in places, and with modern music in an old setting, all of which makes for a melodramatic and sometimes tense romance. Old Man River himself provides a background, for most of the action takes place on a Mississippi showboat and a plantation of the Deep South. Another re-issue on the same bill brings another battery of stellar names. It is "Now and Forever" and the stars are no other than Gary Cooper, Carole Lombard and Shirley Temple.

Amusements

Sponsors Community Day.

Community day at Walton lake Wednesday offers many attractions, the most unusual of which will be the Showboat on the lake at 9:30 p. m. The day's program starts at 3 p. m. with diving contests, and throughout the afternoon and evening there will be a tennis tournament, trap shooting, a fish supper, model airplane and motor boat demonstration, a band concert, and at 9:30 an entertainment of music, comedy and drama, staged on the "showboat" which will be anchored in the lake. A floating stage, in the shape of a boat, with gangplank to the shore, has been constructed for the occasion. Jim Brownscombe will be master of ceremonies and Eugene Smart's Accordion band will provide the musical background. This is the second annual community day at the lake and is open to the public.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

CAUSING A BAD LEAD

WITH BOTH opponents bidding different suits against you, there is usually a pretty good chance that they may wind up in no trump. Sticking in a bid of your own suit may be bad stuff, if it is weakly topped. The chances then are that the foe can stop it safely and bid no trump anyway. Your partner then may be the one misled. His offering of that suit on the opening trick may present the foe with some tricks otherwise unobtainable. So, unless you are willing to have that suit led against no trump, bidding it may prove costly.

	♠ A K Q 3 2 ♥ 5 4 3 ♦ 10 8 4 ♣ J 10
♠ 7 6 ♥ K J 9 8 ♦ 9 5 3 2 ♣ 6 3 2	N. W. E. S.	♠ J 9 5 ♥ A 10 6 ♦ K 7 ♣ K 9 8 7 4
	♠ 10 8 4 ♥ Q 7 2 ♦ A Q J 6 ♣ A Q 5

(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

This deal arose in a duplicate. Some played it at 4-Spades by North and others at 3-No Trumps by South.

Three heart tricks were lost against 4-Spades and four heart tricks against 3-No Trumps.

One pair earned a nice top due to East's misguided overcall of 2-Clubs after South had started with 1-Diamond and North had responded with 1-Spade. As a result of East's bid, instead of opening hearts, West led the club 6. South cashed five spade tricks, four diamonds and three clubs.

	♠ A 8 5 2 ♥ 7 6 3 ♦ 9 6 5 ♣ 4 3 2
♠ K J 7 ♥ 8 5 ♦ K J 3 2 ♣ Q J 10 6	N. W. E. S.	♠ Q 10 9 ♥ 10 4 2 ♦ 10 8 7 ♣ 9 8 7 5
	♠ 6 4 3 ♥ A K Q J 9 ♦ A Q 4 ♣ A K

(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

What is South's best play for 4-Hearts after the lead of the club Q.

Always turn back two or three inches when making the heading for a curtain. This allows for shrinkage when curtains are washed.

My Neighbor Says:

To exterminate grubs that destroy lawns and kill the grass apply arsenate of lead to the lawn.

If you have a pressure sprayer, use that with about 10 pounds of arsenate of lead dissolved in 100 gallons of water, and use this to cover 1000 square feet of lawn.

If a sprayer is not available, mix the lead with twice its bulk of sifted loam and spread evenly over the area, using about 12 pounds of lead to cover 1000 square feet. Then take your garden hose and wash in the lead under as much pressure as possible.

This will kill the white grub, and also the Japanese beetle.

HOROSCOPE

For Tuesday, July 12.

A particularly eventful and memorable day is forecast from the interesting chain of lunar aspects. There is a definite promise of a suden turn which may have a far-reaching effect on the future life and its destinies. In this there may be an element of secrecy, with certain superiors aiding and abetting in affairs of progress and prosperity, and other persons attempting to impede and circumvent. In any case, do not be carried away by impulse or recklessness. Move calmly.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of major events, with matters of a sudden and surprising nature having radical influence on the life. Change of environs and interests is forecast, with employers or superiors assisting to great progress, and elders seeming to interfere and obstruct. Choose clamly and do not let impetuosity or overzealous enterprise misguide you.

A child born on this day may be extremely ambitious and enterprising, with talents and energies reaching to high adventure and progress. But in this there may be much to cope with and fortunes may fluctuate.

Kitchen Hints

Gelatin mixtures often require a little coaxing when removing them from the mold. Dip a clean cloth into warm water. Place it under the mold for ten seconds—no longer. Loosen the edges of the mold with a knife—and then quickly invert the mold. The gelatin should come out with even edges

Cover oilcloth surfaces with a thin coat of floor wax. The oilcloth will then be easier to clean quickly. Merely rub over the surface with a damp cloth to remove spots and stains.

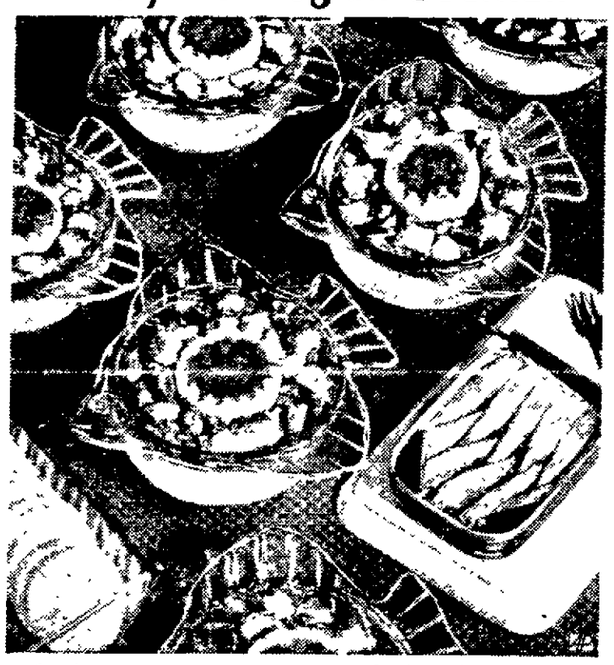
Tasty Norwegian Cocktail



Smoked sardines, chopped and mixed with crisp celery and shredded carrots make this tasty appetizer. The cocktail sauce is held in lemon-skin containers.

Food Expert Tells Tricks For Making Tempting Appetizers

By MRS. ALEXANDER GEORGE
(AP Feature Service Writer)

THE appetizer sets the pace for the rest of the meal

So, whether it's cocktail or canape it should have color

Cocktails should be ice-cold, fairly small and carefully blended. Canapes should appeal to the eye as well as to the palate

If you're serving a fruit cocktail be sure all the fruit is thoroughly chilled. Juices and fruits may be partially frozen. Neither should be too sweet, however.

A combination of fruits or fruit juices is preferable to a single flavor—especially if a few drops of lime or lemon juice are added to give zip. (Ginger ale is especially effective for that purpose. But you should not add it until just before serving time.)

Vegetable juices are equally enticing So is clam juice.

Fish cocktails generally demand an added tang which may be supplied by chopped sweet pickles, diced cucumbers or sauce. Their flavor is also heightened by mixing in crisp chopped celery, minced or finely-chopped green peppers, parsley or pimientos. If onion or garlic seasonings are used it's good to remember that a little goes a long way.

Each ingredient of fish cocktail should be chilled separately When they're combined the French dressing, cocktail sauce, and lemon juice may be added

Cocktail sauces are tasty with many types of cocktails. Here's a recipe for a good all-around sauce

Mix a fourth of a cup each of chili sauce and catsup, two tablespoons each of horseradish and lemon juice and a fourth of a teaspoon each of salt, paprika, sugar, celery salt tabasco sause. Substitute mayonnaise for the catsup—for a change. Mix in a few chopped ripe olives some diced dill pickles and minced pimientos—when the sauce is to be served with tuna, crab or oyster cocktail

Canapes often are served with cocktails as well as being served as a first course.

A canape of chutney sauce spread over toast points is delicious with crabmeat Sardine paste mixed with chopped olives and spread over cheese crackers is especially good with tomato juice Grated cheese, lightly spread on crackers, sprinkled with a few drops of catsup and lightly browned is an excellent foil for fish, vegetable or vegetable juice cocktails.

More elaborate canapes may be planned for the afternoon cocktail party.

And don't forget the relish tray. There are lots of things to put on it—radishes, carrot strips, ham-stuffed celery sticks, cucumber slices spread with pickle relish and bits of cauliflower which have been marinated in French dressing spiced cooked carrot and beet balls placed on wooden picks.

Cooky recipes which call for little liquid make unusually crisp cookies which must be handled with care Always loosen such cookies with a knife as soon as they are baked. If they cool before they are removed they are likely to break to pieces.

Hot Or Cold Salads On Menu Today

By PAULINE SCHOFIELD
Home Service Department of the Ohio Fuel Gas Company.

We can see right into the middle of those July days and we know that all good homemakers will be serving more light meals than ever. Nothing could be more timely than peach cake pie and fresh blueberry refrigerator cake to finish off these meals for hot days.

Some like it hot and some like it cold, so here are recipes for a jellied vegetable salad and hot chicken salad.

Menu.

Jellied vegetable salad
Cheese custard
Rolls
Fresh blueberry refrigerator cake

Menu.

Hot chicken salad
Steamed Asparagus with pecan sauce
Hot rolls Marmalade
Peach cake pie

Jellied Vegetable Salad.

½ tablespoon gelatine
1 tablespoon cold water
¾ cup boiling water
½ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon sugar
2 tablespoons vinegar
2 tablespoons minced onion
½ cup diced cucumber
2 cups cooked diced beets
chicory

Soften the gelatine in the cold water, add the boiling water, salt, sugar and vinegar When the gelatine mixture begins to set, fold in the vegetables. Pour into individual nests of chicory and serve with mustard dressing.

Cheese Custard.

Temperature: 350° F.
Time: 35 to 40 minutes.
12 slices bread
4 eggs
½ pound mild cheese
2 cups milk
¼ teaspoon salt
Dash each black pepper and paprika

Arrange six slices of the bread, fitted in so that the entire surface of a buttered baking dish is covered. Spread on thinly sliced or cut cheese Add shaking of pepper, paprika and salt. Cover with the rest of the bread. Part of the crusts may be removed and if the bread is one day old the amount of milk suggested will be enough; if bread is very dry, use one-half a cup more. Mix the beaten eggs and milk. Pour over all and let it stand twenty minutes. Bake at 350° F. until puffed and browned.

Add one teaspoon of dry mustard over the cheese, if desired. Serve at once, although it is not heavy as it shrinks and settles. An excellent dish for luncheon or to accompany a fish dinner.

Fresh Blueberry Refrigerator Cake.

1⅛ cups (1 can) sweetened condensed milk
¼ cup lemon juice
¼ teaspoon lemon extract
2½ cups fresh blueberries
2 egg whites, beaten stiff
24 lady fingers, or narrow strips of sponge cake

Blend together sweetened condensed milk, lemon juice and lemon extract. Stir until mixture thickens. Add blueberries. Beat egg whites until stiff and fold into mixture. Line narrow, oblong pan with waxed paper; cover with filling Add layer of lady fingers, alternating in this way until filling is used, finishing with layer of lady fingers. Chill in refrigerator 12 hours or longer. To serve, turn out on small platter and carefully remove waxed paper. Cut in slices, serve with whipped cream garnished with a few fresh blueberies reserved for the purpose.

Hot Chicken Salad.

Mix one pint of cooked chicken (in clubes), one cup of cooked peas, one-half a teaspoon of salt, one-fourth a teaspoon of black pepper, one teaspoon of onion juice,, one pimento cut in small squares, one teaspoon of lemon juice, and set aside in a cook place for at least an hour. Make a sauce of one-fourth a cup of butter, one-fourth cup of flour, one-half a teaspoon of salt, one cup of cream, and one cup of chicken broth. Add the seasoned ingredients and let stand over hot water to become very hot. This is good served from a chafing dish.

Steamed Asparagus With Pecan Sauce.

1 large bunch asparagus
½ cup melted butter
¼ cup chopped pecan meats
1 teaspoon lemon juice
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper

Select a bunch of fine green asparagus, trim the coarse, tough ends; wash thoroughly loosely in a bunch, and place in an asparagus steamer with the heads up. Cook until tender. In the meantime prepare the pecan sauce by adding to the melted butter the lemon juice, seasonings and pecans. Remove the asparagus from the steamer, drain thoroughly, place on a hot platter and pour the sauce over it.

A CASE FOR TARTS

Fit pastry into shallow individual pans. Cut out pastry rounds the same diameter as the top of the pans, and using a thimble, cut several rounds from each pastry circle. Bake tart cases and pastry circles. Fill the cases with fresh or canned fruits or berries, sweeten, and cover with the little tops.

Police Smash Hollywood Confidence Game, Arrest Two

STUDIO HEAD'S NAME FORGED ON BIG NOTES

Probers Claim Employes Used Names of Stars in Scheme to Obtain $100,000.

(By United Press)

HOLLYWOOD—Police claimed today to have broken one of the most brazen and successful confidence games in Hollywood history with the arrest of two men charged with peddling promissory notes on which were forged the name of Louis B. Mayer, head of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. The victims included a bank president and a prominent attorney.

The confidence men made use of the names of such stars as Jeanette MacDonald, Nelson Eddy and Charles Laughton.

In custody were George Donald Smart, 35, a film sound recorder, and Layne Britton, 30, a make-up artist, both employed by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, but probably entirely unknown to Mayer whose name, authorities said, was forged to notes totaling $100,000.

Negotiates Loan.

Through his next door neighbor, Smart met President Aubrey Austin of the Santa Monica State bank and negotiated a $10,000 loan on a note which District Attorney Byron J. Fitts said bore the forged signature of Mayer. Smart told the banker that Mayer had plenty of money, but wanted to pay Miss MacDonald a secret bonus. It was no secret. Mayor would deny all knowledge of the deal, if approached, Smart said.

Austin handed over the $10,000 Fitts continued. A few months later he said, Smart paid back the loan—having floated another one with Charles D. Case, one of his neighbors, for $15,000 This sum, Smart said, would enable Mayer to give Eddy a secret bonus.

Smart's next transaction, he told Fitts, was his best.

He borrowed $25,000 on another forged note, so that Actor Laugton could have a bonus. He borrowed the money from Gail Burck, attorney. Smart said E. D. Morgan and E. W. Grigg, investment brokers, examined the deal and approved it.

Smart confessed further, Fitts said, that when Burck wanted Mayer to sign a new note for the $25,000, he had the lawyer mail the blank document to Mayer's home, Smart said he hurried to Mayer's home, talked a chauffeur into handing him the letter, signed Mayer's name to the note, and mailed it back to Burck.

Burck still wasn't satisfied, he wanted to talk to Mayer. Smart said he fixed a telephone line, whereby Burck talked not to Mayer, but to Britton, who impersonated Mayer. That satisfied Burck and the money was forthcoming.

Last Saturday Smart tired to borrow $37,500 from Attorney Max Fink with which to pay the others. Fink refused. By then Mayer had heard of the proceedings and notified authorities.

New Playspot To Be Opened Tuesday By Friendly House

Permission to use the playground on the old Columbia Tire & Rubber company property on Bowman street has been received by the Friendly House from officials of the Mansfield Tire & Rubber company, Russell Gimbel, Friendly House director, announced today.

Activities at the playground were to open today, but rain forced a postponement, Gimbel said. The playground program at the field will be in charge of James Gordon of the WPA, who will work under the direction of the Friendly House. The daily schedule at Columbia field will be from 10 a. m. until 5 p. m.

Gimbel also announced today that the handicraft class for girls at the Friendly House playground which will continue in use, will be from 2:30 to 3:30 p. m. Tuesday in charge of Genevieve Buciński.

RETIRED MASON DIES AT AGE 90

A. W. Musselman, One-Time Contractor, Stricken Today.

ASHLAND—A. W. Musselman, 90, retired stone mason and building contractor, died at 8 a. m. today at his home in New Pittsburg, east of here.

A native of Pennsylvania, Mr. Musselman came to Wayne county when he was five years old. He was a member of the New Pittsburg Lutheran church.

He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Capitola Ewing and Mrs. M. L. Hoverstock, both of New Pittsburg; two sisters, Mrs. Lydia Martin, Cleveland, and Mrs. Linnie Barnhart, of near New Pittsburg, and four grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p. m. Wednesday at the Lutheran church in New Pittsburg, with Rev. Carl Kessler officiating. Burial will be in New Pittsburg cemetery.

Up and Down THE STREET

Service-Safety Director Tracy C. Styert two weeks ago thought that the Liberty park swimming pool had reached the height of capacity when 500 youngsters splashed in the cooling waters during the Friday morning free swim period—but he changed his mind the other day when the official attendance figures showed 713. Now he wouldn't be surprised if a thousand jammed into the pool one of these days.

A little over 11 years ago when a young, unknown flier made the first non-stop flight from New York City to the Paris airport, two newspapermen on rival papers in Lorain wrote the headlines of Lindbergh's air saga . . . Today, on the Howard Hughes New York-Paris non-stop flight story, the second in history, they recalled that fact and then sat down at the same desk and worked out the headline together, without wondering what the "rival sheet" would say. R. D. Lindsay, managing editor of the News-Journal, wrote the headline for the Lorain Journal. Joseph E. Kuebler, now city editor of the Mansfield paper, wrote the banner for the Lorain Times-Herald.

Mansfielders got a glimpse of a part of the Cuban navy minus its ships Saturday. The visitors, who attracted considerable attention in the downtown section, were members of the Cuban navy band on a concert tour of the country. After a brief stop for lunch, the three buses of sailors continued westward.

Iceman also found several five leaf clovers. But good luck grows in the Iceman yard for his mother, Mrs. Madge Iceman has picked at least one and sometimes as many as 10, every day since June 1.

ANOTHER MARK

3rd Playground Record Falls; 16,901 Out in Week.

The attendance record at Mansfield playgrounds was broken for the third straight week last week when 16,901 participated in activitiese supervised by th city recreation department, Director Al Fendrick announced today.

The attendance exceeded the 1937 mark by 10,825, the biggest weekly increase shown to date, Fendrick said, even though the program last week was conducted only four days, due to the July 4 holiday Monday. The average daily attendance last week was 4,225.

A total of 49,806 have participated in the activities to date. The first week drew 17,165 and the second 15,740.

The events drew 4,436 spectators last week, Fendrick's weekly report showed.

DIES AT HOME ON ASHLAND ROAD

Miss Martha Scheidegger, 67, to Be Buried Tuesday Afternoon.

Miss Martha Scheidegger, 67, of Ashland road, died today in General hospital after a lingering illness. She was born in Berne, Ind., Aug. 6, 1871.

Surviving are a brother, David of Ft. Morgan, Col., and six sisters, Mrs. Diana Baumgartner of Ft. Morgan, Col., Mrs. Verena Scherer of Granite Falls, Wash., Mrs. Lydia Hunter of Chicago, Mrs Carolina Sprunger of Berne, Ind., Mrs. C. E. Egle of Palisades, Neb., and Mrs. A. H. Gautchi of Hays Center, Neb.

Funeral services will be held at the Wappner funeral home at 4 p m. Tuesday with Rev. H. E. Tropf of the Grace Gospel church and Rev. J. A. Wilkerson of the Glad Tidings tabernacle officiating. Burial will be in the Zeiter's cemetery.

NAME OMITTED

The name of Mrs. Nora Biddle, Mansfield, was omitted from the list of survivors of Charles Horn, 63, whose death occurred in Bellville Saturday. Mrs. Biddle was a sister of Mr. Horn.

HARDWARE HEAD DIES AT AGE 68

T. J. Chamberlain, President of Martin Company, Had Been Ill Several Months.

Tully J. Chamberlain, 68, of 136 Glenwood boulevard, president and treasurer of the Martin Hardware company, died at his home Sunday evening after an illness of several months.

Mr. Chamberlain became identified with the late W. B. Martin in the operation of the hardware company 30 years ago.

He was born near Olivesburg, Jan. 16, 1870, the son of Abraham and Mary Stout Chamberlain, pioneer residents of this vicinity. His wife, a daughter, Faye, and a brother, Earl, of Olivesburg, survive.

Prior to coming to Mansfield, Mr. Chamberlain conducted a general store in Olivesburg. He purchased the interest of the late Frank Bare in the Bare Bros., and Martin Hardware company in 1909.

Mr. Chamberlain became president and treasurer of the company at the death of Mr. Martin. He served as vice president prior to that time.

Mr. Chamberlain was a member of the First M. E church and Mansfield lodge, F & A. M., 35. He was a director of the Ashland Savings and Trust company.

Services will be held at the Finefrock funeral home at 3 p. m. Tuesday with Rev. Edwin C. Corwin officiating. Burial will be in the Mansfield cemetery. Associates of Mr. Chamberlain in the Martin Hardware company will serve as pall bearers.

OHIO FARMERS CUTTING BUMPER WHEAT CROP BUT PRICES DROP

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—Ohio's harvest of golden wheat this year is running well ahead of 1937 yields but it appeared that farmers would realize less profit from their grain.

Aided by favorable weather, comparative freedom from rust and pests, and a small weed growth, farmers reported the harvest—now in full swing—as "the best in years."

Observers in Ohio State university's agricultural extension department said yields throughout central Ohio were averaging about 25 bushels per acre although 40-bushel acre harvests have been reported.

Last year's average for the area, which encountered unfavorable growing conditions, was about 18 bushels, but the grain brought farmers nearly $1.20 per bushel. Mills this year are paying only about half that amount.

Prof. Edward A. Silver of Ohio State's agricultural engineering department said that prospects of a large harvest throughout the nation accounted for the drop in prices.

Silver added, however, that increased use of combine harvesters had enabled farmers to reap their grain with less effort and fewer hired hands.

Combines cut, thresh and sack the grain in a single operation, eliminating the long-used threshing machines.

Warm, dry weather has brought the moisture content of standing grain to around 12 per cent, Silver said, making it suitable for combine harvesting, which requires that moisture be 14 per cent or less to prevent spoilage later.

STRICKEN HERE

Funeral of Harry L. Pollock to Be Held Tuesday.

Funeral services for Harry L. Pollock, who resided six miles east of Mansfield, will be held at the home at 1 p. m. Tuesday and at the Methodist church in Olivesburg at 2 p. m. with Rev. G. E. Swoyer of the First Luthern church, assisted by Rev. O. L. Ashburn of Olivesburg, officiating. Burial will be in the Olivesburg cemetery.

Mr. Pollock, a native of Ashland county, died Saturday in the General hospital after an illness of two months. He was employed in the sales department of the G. L. Rogers company.

A member of the Olivesburg M. E. church, Mr. Pollock took an active part in church and Sunday school work and taught a Sunday school class for 18 years. He was a member of the Mansfield council No. 13, United Commercial Travelers.

Surviving are his wife, Grace: a brother, Edward of Shenandoah, and two sisters, Mrs. Curtis Robnolt of Findlay and Mrs. William Fellenbaum of Ashland.

FRANK DICKEL RITES TUESDAY

Veteran Newspaperman Was Once Associated With News-Journal.

Funeral services for Frank R. Dickel, 54, who was at one time associated with The News-Journal and its predecessor, The Journal, will be held in Cleveland tomorrow morning. Mr. Dickel died late Friday at his home in Cleveland Heights.

After spending 20 years with Scripps-Howard papers Mr. Dickel organized the Auto Caster company, which supplied material to papers throughout the country.

After leaving The News-Journal in 1933, he was publisher of the Sandusky Daily News and later of the Newark News.

MACHINERY FOR RECOVERY DRIVE IN HIGH GEAR

Fund Distribution to End Sept. 30th; Cities Are Pushing Project Requests.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Satisfied with its power policy and approval of almost 3,000 other type propects, PWA today prepared for a daily average earmarking of slightly over $13,000,000 between now and Sept. 30 to complete its allocating activities.

Having already earmarked $428,279,811 in less than a month of business, PWA has left from its $965,000,000 grant and $400,000,000 loan funds a total of $936,720,189—which must be allocated to communities for public works by the end of September, according to the terms of the $3,755,000,000 Recovery bill.

Hurry Applications.

With 67 business days left in which to file and win approval of public works projects, local communities must of necessity hurry their applications and speed preparations for the actual start of construction.

The president's general Recovery bill stipulated for PWA that work must begin on all projects by Jan. 1, next and must be "substantially completed" by June 30, 1940.

With a rather loose power policy established, giving the "go ahead" signal to all but 22 power projects valued at $5,000,000 and considered competitive to private utilities, PWA pointed with pride to its record. It has approved 2,778 projects in the three and a half weeks since the president revitalizel the emergency works bureau by signing the recovery bill.

These projects when completed will have cost a total of $690,794,832, of which $428,279,811 will have been PWA loans and grants. The federal types of construction will have been entirely financied by PWA but the non-federal propects will represent 45 per cent PWA investment and 55 per cent local investment.

A total of 772 federal propects with grants of $166,596, have been approved along with 2,006 non-federal projects.

A total of 772 federal projects with grants of $166,596,871 have been approved along with 2,006 non-federal propects covered by $235,583,940 in grants and $26,179,000 in loans.

GEN. JOHNSON:

Third New Deal Aims To Make Puppet Party Out of the Democratic One

—By HUGH S. JOHNSON

BETHANY BEACH, Del.—Is the Third New Deal uneasy over the elections? If its political pants were swarming with the ants of apprehension, it couldn't squirm more violently. Ringling-Barnum and Bailey may have been forced back to Florida but the public is going to see a circus more spectacular—complete with rings, parades, sucker side-shows, clowns, freaks and wonders.

There are no two-headed boys but the president is off on a scintillating swing across the continent featuring his new dual-personality, or Jekyll-Hyde act. As Mr. Hyde, a party leader, he will stick political stilettos into the midriffs of opponents of his fair-haired favorites in an act which, as Dr. Jekyll, a president, would be utterly impossible.

* * *

WPA has projects for puppeteers—Punch and Judy shows—but these will not take the road—small time stuff. This circus is to make a puppet show—first out of the Democratic party and next out of congress.

Jim Farley, who had intended to go into cold storage in Alaska to keep out of this Cowboy and Indian battle, has been drafted to make 11 canned speeches en route, fading out against the aurora borealis in a blaze of Michelson's fireworks.

Mr. Aubrey Williams' wholly non-political flying trapeze act with Dave Lasser and his WPA union of the unemployed—suggesting that they vote to keep the Williams-Lasser ilk in power—has just gone into its swing with Mr. Lasser endorsing Senator Elmer Thomas in Oklahoma as one of that ilk. Dave may not be a communist but he makes a noise like one and trails with the reds—forcibly occupying state legislative chambers and pulling strikes against WPA itself. If Elmer is of that ilk, Oklahoma doesn't want him. But it is all just part of the summer circus—Dave, Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Ickes all endorse Elmer.

* * *

I don't know whether the sudden snapshot inquiry into the miseries of the southland rates as one ring under the big top or just a side-show. I think the latter because there are plenty of other rings like the midsummer monopoly witch-hunt. Mr. Paul Mallon, who is a careful reporter, says that the committee selected to diagnose Dixie was hand-picked to give the Third New Deal a benediction for its blessings on the south—which area, the president, not long ago suggested was still living in the feudal age.

What is happening and will happen there will be the presentation of a lot of hand-picked statistics by political departments to this hand-picked committee, ending in a living plaster-painted tableau of Mr. Roosevelt emancipating the "conquered provinces." About all of a permanent nature that has been done for the south is the improvements of TVA and the progressive destruction of foreign markets for its principal export crop—cotton. The latter far more than offsets the former. As an example of high-class hokum and regular circus bally-hoos, this southern exposure stunt sets an all-time record.

* * *

A side-show that isn't doing very well is the kiss-and-make up stunt between government and business. A Hollywood director is needed here. The artists' minds are not on their work. They don't put enough umph into it.

Purges, probes, parades and pump-priming! It is an effort so extreme as to suggest fear of defeat. That is absurd. It is a supreme attempt to create a puppet party so completely dominated by one man that he can do as he pleases to party, government and economic system.

Hollywood Speaks---

By ROBBIN COONS

NEW YORK—Prescription for feeling about as big as a freckle on a flea's nose: any trip, any time, to the Radio City Music hall.

In this chromiumed, mirrored vastness the good old Hollywood descriptive "colossal" seems subtle understatement. Without bothering your head or mine with figures, I'd guess that Hollywood's Chinese theater, the Warner Bros. Hollywood, and the Los Angeles Paramount could fit neatly into a small portion of the building, and the auditorium itself, seating 6,500, could take care of the crowds at those three coast houses on any given night.

There is nothing like the Music hall anywhere else in America, and yet it isn't New York's. It isn't Hollywood's, either. It's a sort of American institution—the ultimate in movie houses. It had its beginning, actually, when Thomas A. Edison built his "black Maria" box of a studio over in Jersey; when Carl Laemmle and Adolph Zukor used to stand in front of their little theaters and hawk the customers in to see "The Great Train Robbery", when the first flickers were shown in remodeled livery stables and grocery stores and op'ry houses in towns and villages from coast to coast.

* *

The Music hall is America's temple to the Great God Cinema. It is the Rheims cathedral of film houses, but like that church it never could have been built without the cinematic catacombs era, the period of furtive and often scorned worshipping at lesser shrines.

A movie temple, it gives you more than movies. Much, much more. It has a stage on which a few of the things Busby Berkeley of Hollywood makes happen on his stages might conceivably happen. It has elaborate lighting effects, and a turntable and elevators that make the derdest tricks possible. And it uses them all. It gives a first-run feature, some shorts, and a stage presentation of the kind that Sid Grauman in his stage-show hey-day would have liked. This includes invariably a big ballet and the Rockettes—36 pretties who make precision dancing a rite—as the finale. The presentation is done with such serious and loving tenderness, a veritable "Goldwyn touch," that its burlesquing in the current musical hit, "I Married An Angel," would be deplorable if it weren't so funny.

Backstage, around-stage, understage at the Music hall is a labyrinth of modern theatrical conveniences. The cautious inspector of these air-cooled and wondrous caverns begins to feel like leaving torn bits of paper along his course, Hansel and Gretel fashion, to mark his trail back to the outer world. There are even times when you wonder how in heck your guide is going to find his way out.

Mine, a quite remarkable fellow in my estimation, did with comparative ease, only once losing the trail and for a couple of terrified moments near a scenery dock confessing his forebodings that the two of us might have to rough it there until the searching parties came, or whatever is the Music hall equivalent of St. Bernards. This gloomy prospect—for one not an actor cannot live on scenery alone — was happily unfulfilled. The last door he tried led us to escape. Remember how Tom Sawyer felt when he and Becky Thatcher crawled out of the cave? It was a little like that with us.

But then my friend had the temerity to suggest extending our tour to include Radio City in its colossal entirety. I limped, could not run, to the nearest exit. Just the way a two-miler would have done if at the end of his grind he were urged to enter the marathon, starting immediately.

WATCH FOR SOMETHING TO POP ON THE DEAN SITUATION TODAY.

By SID FEDER
(Pinch-Hitting for Eddie Brietz)

NEW YORK—(AP)—Tip: Watch for something to pop on the Dizzy Dean situation before the day's over . . . Cubs' bosses are about fed up with the business and are talking it over at a meeting this p. m.—voluntary retirement may be the outcome. . . Van Lingle Mungo is taking mud-pack treatments for his ailing wing . . . and is definitely out indefinitely. . . . They'll have to send a freighter over to bring Don Budge's tennis cups back from Europe . . . The Czech championship makes the sixth mug he's collected on tour . . . not counting the tinware he brought back from Australia. . . . Umpire Ziggy Sears' boy Ken is quitting Alabama to sign with the Yanks . . . Gets five G's for it, and probably will be farmed to Butler (Penn State league).

Claude Passeau, the guy who isn't superstitious, changed his mind . . . When it came up the 13th inning in the Phils-Dodgers game Saturday, Claude yanked off his regular No. 13 shirt and put on No. 27 . . . And won the game in the 16th frame! . . . Promoter Johnny Attell is taking no chances when Bernie Friedkin and Al Davis tangle in a neighborhood grudge over in Brooklyn's Dexter park tonight . . . He's dividing the rival supporters so they'll be in different parts of the stands—just in case.

Hank Greenberg has hit a homer in every park in the league so far.

Nation Stars Chase Cooper In PGA Meet

Chicagoan Fires a 67 to Pace Shawnee Field.

SHAWNEE ON DELAWARE, Pa.—(U.P.)—The pick of the nation's professional golfers chased "Light Horse Harry" Cooper again today at the start of the final qualifying round of the National P. G. A. championship.

The chunky Chicagoan has a way of cutting out the early foot in nearly all the major golf tournaments and then usually bogs down in the stretch and allows players without his mastery of shots to pass him.

Leads 108 Starters.

Cooper fired a 67 in the first 18 holes of qualifying yesterday and when the field of 108 started firing today he was a strong favorite to win the medalist honors.

He can't afford to ease up much, however, because his 67, while only one stroke over the course record, was but a shot lower than the score of Frank Moore, and two strokes lower than the cards of Sam Snead, Terl Johnson and Henry Picard. And at 70 stood such shooters as Ralph Guldahl, open champion; Dick Metz, runner up to Guldahl at Denver, Paul Runyan and Marvin Stahl.

Today's play will separate the golfing great from the "also rans" and clear the decks for the five days of match play that starts Tuesday.

When the shooting is over tonight all but the low 63 scorers will be eliminated. The 64th place will be filled by Defending Champion Denny Shute, the Boston sharp shooter. Denny's win at Pittsburgh last year made him an automatic qualifier.

Shute Takes a 74.

Shute played yesterday however and had a 74. He was putting well, and believes that if his putting touch stays with him all week he has a good chance to become the second man in the history of the tournament to win the title three times in a row. Walter Hagen bowled over all opposition to take the title in 1924, '25, '26 and '27.

Hi-Speeds Go To Wakeman Tuesday

The Mansfield Hi-Speeds will meet Chagrin Falls at 8:30 p. m. Tuesday and Gypsum will face the Sandusky Amburns Thursday in the semi-finals games scheduled in the district semi-pro tournament now in progress at Wakeman. The Sandusky team reached the semi-finals by defeating LaGrange, 7 to 4, Saturday.

The finals will be held Friday night, with both participants advancing to the state tournament to be held in Canton.

GEHRINGER STILL TOPS IN ALL-STAR HITTING

NEW YORK—(AP)—The American leaguers lost the ball game, but Charley Gehringer still is No. 1 hitter of all-star baseball history.

The strong, silent man of the Detroit Tigers hit safely once in three chances Wednesday, his sixth all-star game. The performance chopped 28 points off his six-year average, but left him with a mark of .500 on ten hits in 20 times at bat, and that was the best of any player who has seen action in three or more dream games.

Geiger Pitches Brilliantly to Stop Columbus Glassmen at Fairground.

By OSCAR RUHL
News-Journal Sports Editor.

YOUTH must be served, Dewey Durant's American Legion baseball club showed yesterday.

This old axiom has been successfully challenged, but not yesterday at the Fairground where the Mansfield representatives collected a neat 6 to 2 victory over the all-veteran Federal Glass club of Columbus in the opening game of the second half of the Central Ohio semi-pro league.

Few See Game.

Collectively the youngest team in the circuit by many years, the Legionnaires presented the finest exhibition of baseball witnessed at the Springmill street range this season before a meager assemblage.

The Legion baseballers did not play flawless ball, but displayed an aggressive and interesting game that completely overshadowed the exhibition put on by the visitors.

Featuring the game was the pitching of Harold Geiger, who scattered nine hits to enable his teammates to avenge the 2 to 0 defeat suffered in the opening tilt of the first half some months ago.

The veteran right hander permitted only three hits up to the sixth inning, and the Glassmen were unable to do much with their other blows in the latter innings.

Columbus threatened seriously twice before it tallied. The invaders filled the sacks in the fourth with two down, and Geiger retired the side with a strike out.

In the sixth, Zang and Henson, the first two men up, singled, but Geiger made Tom Leonard, former American Association star, line to Butch Shaffer and eliminated the next two batsmen on strikes.

Score In Eighth.

Zang's single, Leonard's double and Hal Beal's single gave the visitors their two runs in the eighth.

Geiger struck out 10 and issued only two passes as he turned in his best pitching performance of the season.

Others who contributed much to the Mansfield victory were Shaffer and Freddy Lewis, shifted to center field to replace Tommy Maxley, no longer with the team.

Lewis's triple set off the fireworks in the last of the eighth inning in which the Legionnaires tallied four times. The middle gardener smacked one of Lefty Mettle's choice pitches to the race track in left field to score Geiger with what proved to be the winning run.

Shaffer collected two hits, pounded home two runs and handled six chances faultlessly at the hot corner. He also engineered the only double play of the game in the second.

Sharing the batting honors with Shaffer were Lewis, Donnan and Bill Burgraff, a new catcher from Iberia, who collected a pair of hits apiece. Burgraff's two smashes were doubles.

The Legion boys did all of their scoring in two innings. They got to Mettle for two runs in the second on a double by Burgraff, a single by Shaffer and outfield flys by Chatlain and Beal.

Quiet Until Eighth.

Durant's men obtained only two hits after this uprising until the eighth when they scored four runs to break a 2-all tie.

In addition to Lewis' triple, the hits in the big eighth were contributed by Donnan, Burgraff and Shaffer. Mettle was replaced by Pare in the eighth with two gone, and he made Chatlain force Shaffer at second.

One of the feature defensive plays of the game was registered by Lloyd Beal in the fourth when he took Myers' bid for an extra base hit over his shoulder near the inner rail in right field.

TOLEDO BARTENDER WINS OHIO PUBLINKS CROWN

TOLEDO—(AP)—Jay Krochmalny, Toledo bartender, was the pay-as-you-play golf champion of Ohio today, even though his six-stroke lead at the start of the final round faded like the foam on stale beer, until he had just one winning stroke at the end of the Ohio Public links tournament here.

The Sunningdale Golf club's tall custodian of the 19th hole, playing over his home course, carded an eight-over-par 79 for the last 18 holes for a 293 total. Ollio Galen of Toledo was second with 294.

McNEILL, LEWIS ADVANCE IN NEW YORK TOURNEY

NEW YORK—(AP)—Don McNeill and Morey Lewis, Kenyon college hitters, were in the third round of the New York state clay court tennis championship today. McNeill with a 6-0, 6-1 victory over Bruce Brayton of New York, and Lewis with a 7-5, 6-1 decision over Harry Diamond of Brooklyn.

JOHNS PARK NEEDS VICTORY TO CINCH LOOP TITLE TODAY

WHILE Fritz Carver did a pretty fair job of twirling in his first appearance of the season last week, Manager John Flockenzier plans to start Jimmy Fullager on the hillock for John park when it concludes the first half schedule of the City Class A softball league with the Richland county fish and game association club of North park at North park today.

Carver was on the mound for the Johnnies last Monday when they dropped their first game of the season to Prospect park.

Whether the defeat will prove costly will be determined today in the game at North park. The Johnnies can get no worse than a tie for the title if they lose today, and will be crowned undisputed champions if they triumph.

In the first game between the two teams this season, Johns park triumphed. Gettles, who was beaten by Liberty park last week, will probably go to the hill for the Sportsmen.

The Liberty park-Prospect park game at Liberty park will have no bearing on the championship, but the result of the tilt will give the followers of the league an idea of what to expect from the two clubs in the second round.

Liberty park has come back strong after a poor start, while the Prospectors showed indications of gaining their stride last week when they tumbled the present leaders for their first victory.

Ted Frisbee, who hurled against the Johnnies, will probably oppose the Liberties today as Prospect attempts to close its first half season with a victory. Bush is the likely Liberty twirler.

Rub Strikes In It, Lefty!

The condition of Bob Feller of the Cleveland Indians, is a source of especial pride for Lefty Weisman, trainer of the team fighting for the American league pennant. Here the striker-outer is having some bases on balls rubbed out of his arm, and some strikes ground in.

Pitcher Stars As O. S. R. Wins

Allowing only six hits, striking out eight and hitting a home run, Lytle starred as the reformatory baseball club defeated the Rex Billiards, 5 to 1, at the institution Saturday. Lytle's home run, coupled with two walks and Martin's single, gave the inmates four runs in the second.

Smith liminted the inmates to five hits and struck out 11.

GAMES CALLED OFF

Games scheduled in the city recreation Intermediate league this morning were postponed because of rain. Games scheduled today in the circuit will be played Tuesday.

JACKSON TEAM WINS

Striking out 13 and allowing only five hits, Uhlich hurled the Jackson township baseball club to a 9 to 4 victory over Gibson in Shelby yesterday.

One-Run Victories Keep Tribe on Top

Indians Refuse to Fold Up, Stretch Lead to 2 Games as They Stop Browns.

CLEVELAND—(UP)—A week ago when the Cleveland Indians dropped a double-header and allowed the New York Yankees to climb into a tie with them for the American league lead, most baseball experts agreed the Tribe had "folded" and that the Yanks would merely coast to the pennant.

Cleveland however has refused to "choke up" and today the Indians held a lead of two full games over the highly-touted Yankees and commanded more respect than at anytime this season.

The Indians stretched their lead to a full game yesterday by downing the St. Louis Browns, 8 to 7, while New York was losing to Boston.

Third Straight.

The victory was the third straight for Cleveland over St. Louis and each of the triumphs was by the margin of one run. In two of the games the Tribe had to travel 10 innings and yesterday it pushed across the winning counter in the last half of the ninth.

Johnny Allen, Cleveland's ace right-hander and the winner of 12 straight contests, started in the box for the Indians, but wasn't around at the finish. The Browns gave him his worst cuffing of the season and he was jerked with none out in the eighth after he had given up five runs and seven hits.

After Allen left the mound, Mel Harder took up the pitching burden. He permitted two hits and another run before the side was retired in the eighth and then in the ninth when nicked for a home run by Billy Sullivan that tied the score and a single that put the winning run on base, Manager Oscar Vitt sent Denny Galehouse into action. Galehouse then disposed of the next three batters without trouble.

With the count knotted at 7 to 7 going into the last of the ninth, Buck Newsom in the box for the Browns put himself in a hole by walking Galehouse. Jimmy Webb forced the Indian hurler and then Roy Weatherly beat out an intended sacrifice. Both runners advanced as Sammy Hale was thrown out. Then Rookie Jeff Heath smashed a ball to deep left center that sent the winning run home.

Combine 13 Hits.

Cleveland combined its 13 hits effectively. The Tribe scored twice in the second, four times in the sixth and once in the seventh before pushing across the game winning tally in the ninth.

The Indians are not scheduled today. Tomorrow they open a crucial 12-game tour of the east by playing at Washington.

Vitt Shifts Lineup For Eastern Jaunt

CLEVELAND—(AP)—The Cleveland Indians prepared today for another tour of the east with a patched lineup and a two-game lead at the top of the American league.

Manager Oscar Vitt said he would be satisfied if the Tribe played .500 ball on the trip. Rookie Jim "Skeeter" Webb will replace veteran Lyn Lary at shortstop and Roy Weatherly will relieve Bruce Campbell in right field.

Vitt said "Campbell hasn't been fielding well and a rest may pull him out of his slump. Lary has been erratic and I think Webb is capable."

FEMININE STARS TEE OFF AT PORTAGE CLUB TODAY

AKRON—(U.P.)—The state's top-flight feminine golfers teed off at the Portage Country club here today for the qualifying round of the 19th annual Ohio women's golf tournament. The field was one of the smallest in years and tournament officials did not expect more than 75 competitors. Tee entries were being accepted.

KEARNS TO FILE SUIT AGAINST ILLINOIS BOARD

DETROIT—(INS)—Boxing Promotor Jack Kearns today announced, through his attorney, he would file suit against the State of Illinois and the Illinois boxing commission for $5,000,000 damages.

Kearns was suspended for five years in Illinois after an alleged "dive" by Jack Trammell in a bout with Jimmy Adamick.

HI-SPEEDS BLANKED

The Mansfield Hi-Speeds baseball club was defeated by the Akron Junior Yankees, 6 to 0, at League park Sunday.

NEW LONDON WINS PAIR

NEW LONDON—The New London baseball club won a double-header Sunday, defeating Joppa, 11 to 3, in the first game and trimming Nova, 20 to 7, in the night-cap. Staples struck out 10 in the first game.

Vander Meer In Top Form Against Cubs

No-Hit Pitcher Yields Only Four Hits.

ST. LOUIS—(U.P.)—The magic in the left arm of rookie Johnnie Vander Meer today restored to the Cincinnati Reds the confidence that made them one of the most feared teams in baseball and put them back into a strategic place in the tight National league pennant chase.

Vander Meer added luster to one of the most brilliant pitching records ever compiled by a major league "freshman" yesterday at Chicago when he turned back the Cubs 3 to 1. The victory was the chunky southpaw's 11th of the campaign and enabled Cincinnati to make a clean sweep of the Chicago series. A crowd of 30,793 fans saw the game.

Vander Meer was in top form against the Cubs. The youngster allowed the Bruins but four hits and the only run Chicago scored was unearned. He set six men down on strikes and walked only three batters.

In recording his 11 victories Vander Meer has three shutouts to his credit and in five other contests he has given the opposition only one run.

"Big Bill" Lee, who gained a decision over Vander Meer a week ago at Cincinnati, was in the box for the Cubs. The burly right-hander gave up only seven hits in the seven innings he worked, but Cincinnati combined the safeties judiciously. The veteran Charley Root pitched the final two innings and allowed two more hits.

Cincinnati gave Vander Meer an early lead when it scored twice in the second inning and once in the third. The rookie then proved fully capable of protecting the advantage.

Score Well Despite Heat

Golfers Turn Out Fine Cards on Mansfield Courses.

Torrid weather over the week-end interfered with golf to some extent on Mansfield courses, but the few scores which were turned in were of high cabiber.

* * *

Topping the week-end scoring was a 69 by Al Kushin, who put together rounds of 34 and 35 at Possum Run.

* * *

Thornton Lake blasted out a 71 at Possum Run, with a first round score of 33. Pete Linster gathered up a 71 and Oscar Frantz shot a 75.

* * *

Out at Coolridge, Nick Loris whipped up a 36 and 37 for a 73. Roy Rachel shot a 37 and 38. John Fisch came through with a 38 and 40. Ronnie Hunsicker compiled a 39 and 40 and Pete Schadek punched out a 42 and 41.

* * *

Harry Case led those who turned in nine hole scores at Coolridge with a 36. Jerry Goldman responded with a 39 and Dave Kohler turned out a 40. Coach Harry Mehock accounted for his best score of the year as he marked up a 44 after a bad start.

* * *

The heat held play at Westbrook country club to a minimum Sunday.

Rallying Pirates Seek 12th Straight Today

By LESLIE AVERY

NEW YORK—(AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates, whose mid-season comeback has the baseball world agog, sought their 12th straight victory and the season's longest winning streak against the Chicago Cubs today.

The Traynors' unpredictable Bucs, who usually start out like a ball of fire and then fold up when the going gets tough, since May 22 have lifted themselves from fifth to second place in the National League two games behind the leading New York Giants.

Pittsburgh gained a half-game yesterday when it took a double-header from the St. Louis Cardinals 5-2 and 4-3. Cy Blanton pitched eight hit ball to win the opener and Russ Bauers, although relieved in the seventh, triumphed in the second.

The Giants won, 5-2, over the Boston Bees as Cliff Melton held the beantown batsm

314 SECURITY CLAIMS FILED HERE IN YEAR

District Office's Report for First Year Shows Account Numbers Issued to 5,500.

Social Security claims for 314 persons were certified for payment during the first year of the Mansfield field office of the Social Security Board, Robert G. Mish, manager, said today.

The Mansfield field office which marked its first anniversary today, issued Social Security account numbers to more than 5,500 persons during the period, Mish said. The office serves Richland, Ashland, Marion, Morrow, Crawford and Wyandot counties.

Activity Along 2 Lines.

"During the year we have directed our activity along two principal lines," Mish said. "One has been to issue Social Security account numbers, while the other has been to file claims for lump-sum payments which were due certain individuals."

"In the last three months our Mansfield office has had 96 claims certified. The average payment during that period was $40.87 while the average for the last 30 days of our first year of operation was $46.59," he added.

"Persons who reach the age of 65 after having worked in commerce or industry are generally entitled to payments of this type. The same is true of heirs of persons who have died after having been employed similarly. In either case the payment is 3½ per cent of the wages earned during the period between January 1, 1937, and the date when the worker or his heirs became eligible for the lump-sum payment."

Bar Association Plans Institute On Federal Rules

A number of Mansfield attorneys are expected to attend a three-day institute on federal court rules opening July 21 at Western Reserve university, Cleveland. Sponsored by the American Bar association, the sessions will be held in the Allen Memorial library.

The institute will precede the annual convention of the American Bar association which will be held in Cleveland.

The first of its kind ever held in this country, the institute will include classes covering the new rules of procedure for the United States courts.

Among the speakers will be William D. Mitchell, New York, chairman of the U. S. supreme court's rules committee; Major Edgar B. Tolman, secretary of the committee and editor of the American Bar Association Journal; Dean Charles E. Clark of the Yale Law school; Prof. Wilbur H. Cherry of the University of Minnesota Law school, and Prof. Edson R. Sunderland of the University of Michigan Law school.

"The rules have been promulgated by the supreme court and are designed to make procedure more flexible and the courts more responsible to modern conditions," Prof. William W. Dawson of Western Reserve university, said. "Heretofore, there has been no uniformity in federal courts sitting in the several states," he added.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

Sealed bids will be received by K. E. Gifford, Clerk of the Board of Education of Greenwich Village District, Huron County, Ohio until twelve o'clock noon, July 20, 1938 for furnishing all materials and performing all the labor for the construction of alterations to the Grade School building at Greenwich, Ohio and installation of sanitary plumbing therein and sewage treatment plant, all to be in accordance with plans and specifications prepared by O. E. Scott, Norwalk, Ohio, architect for said board.

All proposals shall be made in conformity with the General Code of Ohio, and on the blank forms to be obtained from the architect, and the price of labor and materials must be stated separately. Each bidder may submit bids for any or all of the following items, or for a combination of any of the items:

Item 1—Alterations to building; Item 2—Sanitary plumbing and drainage; Item 3—Sewage treatment plant; Item 4—Out fall.

Each bid shall contain the name of every person interested therein, and must be accompanied by a surety bid bond or a certified check on a solvent bank, in amount not less than five per cent of the total amount of the bid, including the highest alternate, and conditioned that if the bid be accepted a contract will be entered into and the performance of it properly secured.

A corporate surety bond conditioned according to the General Code of Ohio, and satisfactory to the Board of Education, for fifty per cent of the amount of the bid will be required for all contracts.

All bids must be sealed, addressed to the Clerk, and be clearly marked on the outside with the name of the bidder and the items bid upon.

The competency of the bidders, and the time for the completion of the work will be given consideration before the award of all contracts. Each and every bidder will be held to have carefully examined the site and the plans and specifications and to have sufficiently acquainted himself with all the conditions pertaining to the work, prior to filing his bids.

Every contractor will be required to comply fully with all laws and regulations of the State of Ohio pertaining to work covered by this contract and especially sections 17-3, 17-4, 17-4A, 17-5, 17-5A of the General Code of Ohio.

The board of Education reserves the right to reject any or all bids, or parts of any or all bids or to waive defects in favor of the Board.

K. E. GIFFORD, Clerk,
Board of Education, Greenwich Village School.

SHOWING GAIN

BUCYRUS — Lorraine Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Miller of this city, is reported in an improved condition in a South Bend, Ind., hospital, where he has been confined for six weeks with injuries received in an automobile accident. He received a fractured skull and other severe injuries and will be confined to his bed for two more weeks.

GET NEW WHEAT

BUCYRUS—New wheat is being received in Bucyrus elevators, E. G. Reid, proprietor of the Reid elevator, stated today. The wheat is of excellent quality and is testing more than 60 pounds to the bushel and is averaging 20 to 30 bushels to the acre, he reported.

CRASH VICTIM ASKS $25,000

Mansfield Girl, Passenger in Car in Which Youth Was Killed, Sues Driver.

Miss Helen Stoner, 20, Mansfield, who was injured in an automobile accident last October on the West Fourth street road, filed a suit in common pleas court today asking $25,000 damages from the driver of the car in which she was a passenger.

The suit, which was instituted by Miss Stoner's mother, Mrs. Gertrude Stoner, names Edward Hagesfeld, Cleveland, as defendant and holds him responsible for the accident in which George Martin, another passenger, was killed.

In her action Miss Stoner contends that Hagesfeld insisted on driving the car although he was intoxicated, and that as a result of his negligence, the car crashed into a telephone pole at the B. and O. crossing.

Miss Stoner's injuries included a fractured pelvis, and deep lacerations on her face and body. She was confined to Mansfield General hospital for three weeks as a result of her injuries, which left permanent scars on her face and caused lameness, she said.

Attys. John C. O'Donnell and Francis R. O'Brien represent Miss Stoner in her suit.

CONFER TONIGHT

Milk Producers Act to Settle Differences Over Ordinance.

Members of the Richland County Milk Producers' association will meet at 8 p. m. today at the courthouse in an attempt to settle differences over compliance with the Mansfield health board's milk ordinance.

The meeting was called by Clarence Mowry, president of the association, and the board of directors of the organization at the request of a group of members who have protested against the sanitation requirements of the health board, contending that they are unreasonable and too expensive for the small producer.

M. R. Moomaw, manager of the Stark County Producers' association, is scheduled to speak at the meeting.

Members of the Richland county association will be asked to express opinions on enforcement of the milk ordinance, Dale M. Dohner, manager of the association, said.

Diagnostic Clinic Reveals Four New Cases, Year's Total 57.

The number of cases of tuberculosis discovered in Richland county this year reached 57 today as four more were reported by the diagnostic clinic held Friday at General hospital under the direction of Dr. T. L. Bliss of Akron.

Dr. Roy C. Rehder, city-county health commissioner, said that of the 33 suspected cases examined, four showed a positive test while 29 proved negative. Out of the 267 patients examined at the clinics this year, 210 were not afflicted with the disease, the commissioner reported.

Two of the newest cases were among the 21 suspects from the city that were examined. One case was discovered among the seven from the county while the other case was a recheck from the county. Of the four suspects from Shelby, all proved negative.

One patient was recommended to the county commissioners to be sent to the sanitorium at Mt. Vernon.

ADDS $1,000 TO CITY'S BALANCE

Court Receipts For June Total $1,248. Increase of $50.

The city's general fund today was increased by $1,001.55 from Municipal court receipts for June which totaled $1,248.29, according to a monthly report of collections prepared by Miss Isabel Gertsmeyer, deputy clerk. This was an increase of $50 over the receipts for the previous month but $800 below the revenue during June, 1937.

Of the total receipts, $246.71 was distributed to the state, county and law library. The city's share was derived from $850.40 collected as fines and costs in criminal cases and $151.15 as costs in civil cases.

Can Anyone Buy Auto Insurance?

A number of years ago it was no trick at all for anyone driving a car to get auto insurance.

But times have changed and so has the writing of automobile insurance. Not that insurance companies don't want as many policyholders as they can get, but they are turning more to selected risks.

"Every day it is becoming more and more difficult to purchase auto insurance unless the individual has a clean record from the standpoint of sane, careful driving, sobriety, accident frequency, etc.," the Lincoln Mutual Indemnity company and the Continental Auto Mutual Insurance company say.

The two Mansfield firms point out that practically all of the automobile writing companies are pooling their experience and maintaining a carefully indexed record of the experiences on each individual risk.

This makes it possible for each company to instantly check the record of each risk which is submitted for insurance and to decline acceptance of any which are known to be undesirable because of accident frequency, driving while intoxicated, physical defects, failure to co-operate in his own defense, etc.

* * *

"Pooling of experience on the part of companies was an essential step forward in the underwriting of automobile insurance," the Lincoln and Continental say. "It was necessary in order to conform with the very theory of insurance, which is, the payment of the losses of a few through the pooling of the premiums of many.

"On this very theory it is quite naturally essential that the insurance companies produce a profit, otherwise they cannot remain in business and they cannot produce a profit unless their risks are carefully chosen and of such a type as to produce a favorable loss ratio."

Policy-holders are asked to bear in mind with these forms of coverage that the insurance company, through its policy, simply assumes the legal liability of the policy-holder, up to the limits specified in the policy and subject to the provisions thereof with respect to usage, etc.

* * *

In addition to the assumptions of legal liability, the company agrees to investigate accidents in which the policy-holder may become involved and to defend, in the policy-holder's name, any legal actions which may be brought against him as the result of automobile accidents.

"The simple answer to the reason for purchasing this form of protection is that the individual buys a policy which provides expert investigation of any accident in which he may become involved and this results in the building up of a thorough legal defense in the event he is sued," the Lincoln and Continental point out.

In addition the policy provides expert defense attorneys as well as indemnity up to the limits of the policy in the event a judgment is rendered against the policy-holder.

* * *

"It can be readily seen why every policy of this type provides that the policy-holder shall cooperate fully with his insurance company, in promptly reporting any accident and securing and furnishing the insurance company with the names and addresses of all witnesses to the accident," the two Mansfield home companies say. "The policy-holder is never privileged to assume responsibility for any accident, nor should he ever make any statements to that effect, because, while he may think he is to blame, there may be legal angles entering into the case which will clear him of liability, if all of the facts are placed in the hands of his insurance company in order that it may make the expert investigation for which the policy-holder has paid his premium."

Max Diner Installs New Air Cooling System

A new cooling system that changes the air every two minutes was installed today at Max Diner, 15 South Walnut street. Known as the Rex-Airate Comfort System, it drives out heat and humidity and pulls in fresh, cool air.

During the hottest part of the day, the system will keep the thermometer reading inside the Diner from 15 to 18 degrees below the outside temperature. Rex-Airate creates a gentle breeze in driving out the heat and pulling in fresh air from the outdoors.

A view of the cozy and comfortable booths in the Diner is shown above. Manager Tom McNew is at the cashier's counter. The Walnut street restaurant and the other Max Diner, 31 East Third street, are two of the city's most popular eating places.

Quality food, served quickly at reasonable prices is the keynote of both Diners. Hundreds of steady patrons testify that the food is not only of a high quality, but that the menus offer a wide variety that will satisfy the most exacting patron.

The two Diners are open 24 hours a day every day in the year.

RESOLUTION NO. 38-110

By Mr. Berg:

Declaring it necessary to improve North Main Street from Fifth Street to Olive Street by lighting the same by electricity.

BE IT RESOLVED BY THE COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF MANSFIELD, STATE OF OHIO, Three-fourths of all members elected thereto concurring:

Section 1. That it is necessary to improve North Main Street from Fifth St., to Olive Street by lighting the same with Nitrogen Tungston lights of 600 Candle Power, mounted on ornamental iron posts.

Section 2. That the plans, specifications, estimates and profiles of said proposed improvement now on file in the office of the Director of Service, be and the same are hereby approved.

Section 3. That part of the costs of said improvement not to exceed 33c per foot front per year shall be assessed by foot front upon the following described lots and lands, to wit: All lots and lands bounding and abutting upon the proposed improvement, which said lots and lands are hereby determined to be specially benefited by said improvement.

Section 4. That the assessment so to be levied shall be paid in nine annual installments.

Section 5. That the remainder of the entire cost of said improvement, not specially assessed, shall be paid by the City of Mansfield, Ohio, in the manner provided by law.

Section 6. This resolution shall take effect and be in force from and after the earliest period allowed by law.

Passed, June 21, 1938.
Signed: K. P. TROLL,
President of Council.
Approved: C. M. HUNTER
Mayor.

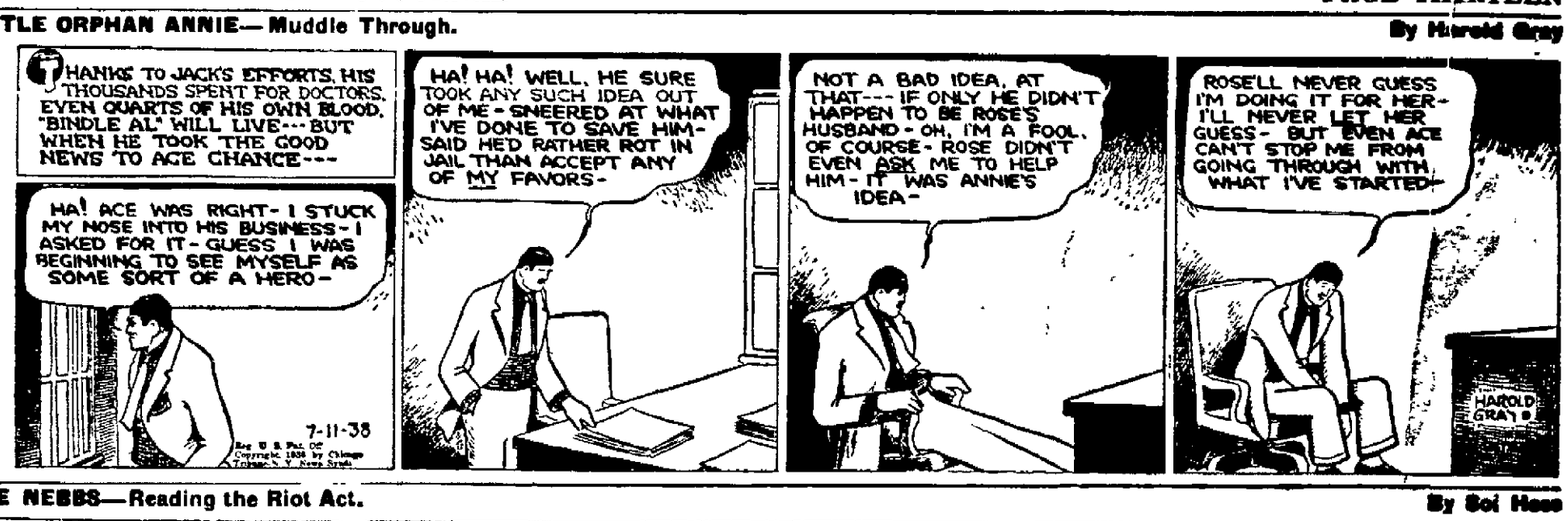
LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE—Muddle Through. By Harold Gray



THANKS TO JACK'S EFFORTS, HIS THOUSANDS SPENT FOR DOCTORS, EVEN QUARTS OF HIS OWN BLOOD, "BINDLE AL" WILL LIVE··· BUT WHEN HE TOOK THE GOOD NEWS TO ACE CHANCE···
HA! ACE WAS RIGHT- I STUCK MY NOSE INTO HIS BUSINESS- I ASKED FOR IT- GUESS I WAS BEGINNING TO SEE MYSELF AS SOME SORT OF A HERO-
7-11-38
HA! HA! WELL, HE SURE TOOK ANY SUCH IDEA OUT OF ME- SNEERED AT WHAT I'VE DONE TO SAVE HIM- SAID HE'D RATHER ROT IN JAIL THAN ACCEPT ANY OF MY FAVORS-
NOT A BAD IDEA, AT THAT··· IF ONLY HE DIDN'T HAPPEN TO BE ROSE'S HUSBAND- OH, I'M A FOOL, OF COURSE- ROSE DIDN'T EVEN ASK ME TO HELP HIM- IT WAS ANNIE'S IDEA-
ROSE'LL NEVER GUESS I'M DOING IT FOR HER- I'LL NEVER LET HER GUESS- BUT EVEN ACE CAN'T STOP ME FROM GOING THROUGH WITH WHAT I'VE STARTED-

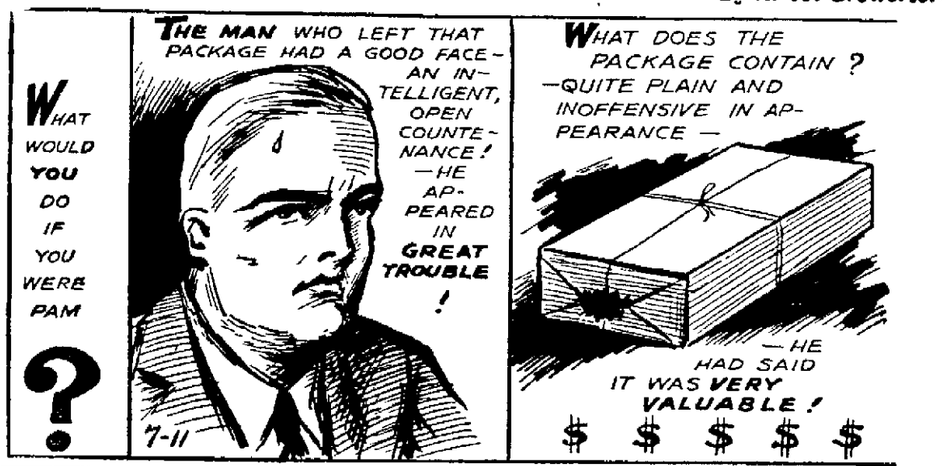
SAY, STEVE, I KNOW WHAT YOU INTEND TO DO··· TO CLAIM HALF OF AUNT OPHELIA'S PROPERTY···YOU NEEDN'T HANG AROUND ATTORNEYS' OFFICES GETTING ADVICE.. I'LL GIVE YOU MORE THAN HALF OF WHAT IT WAS WORTH WHEN I GOT IT- THAT'S $500!
WHY, BROTHER, I'M SURPRISED AT YOU··· ALL I WANT IS ONE DOLLAR SO AS TO CLEAR YOUR TITLE SINCE I'VE TURNED UP NOT DEAD··· THAT'S WHAT THE ATTORNEY TOLD ME

—The Situation! By A. W. Brewerton



WHAT WOULD YOU DO IF YOU WERE PAM ?
THE MAN WHO LEFT THAT PACKAGE HAD A GOOD FACE— AN INTELLIGENT, OPEN COUNTENANCE! —HE APPEARED IN GREAT TROUBLE!
7-11
WHAT DOES THE PACKAGE CONTAIN ? —QUITE PLAIN AND INOFFENSIVE IN APPEARANCE — —HE HAD SAID IT WAS VERY VALUABLE! $ $ $ $ $
HE APPEARED AND VANISHED WITH SUCH SUDDENNESS IT LEFT PAM GASPING! HER FIRST IMPULSE WAS TO TRY TO HELP HIM, EVEN TO TELL NO ONE —AND SHE HAS STUCK TO THIS SO FAR!
PLEASE HELP ME!
—IT MUST HAVE BEEN AN EXTREME EMERGENCY THAT A MAN OF HIS APPARENT CHARACTER SHOULD APPEAL TO A PERFECT STRANGER!
I— REALLY FELT SORRY FOR HIM!
IS PAM MAKING A MISTAKE? WERE THE MAN'S LOOKS DECEPTIVE ?

LOWER PRICES RULE MARKET AFTER OPENING

Stocks Slip Downward After Aviation Shares Lift List in Mid-Morning.

NEW YORK —(INS)— The stock market ruled generally lower in early afternoon dealings today, after aviation shares had lifted the list for a time in mid-morning.

Buying in aviation issues reflected primarily the bullish first-half earnings report of Douglas, which is expected to be followed by equally favorable statements from other leaders in the industry. Douglas, United Aircraft and Wright each went into new high ground for the year before meeting with profit-taking.

Pivotal groups, as steels, coppers, motors, rubbers and mail orders, opened lower, rallied for a time, then slipped later to new lows for the day. General business news was of a cheerful nature.

Bethlehem Steel dropped more than a point, after being up fractionally. U. S. Steel and Youngstown followed a somewhat similar pattern.

Case, in a thin market, lost close to 3 points at one time. International Harvester in the same group. Santa Fe in the rails, Kennecott in the coppers and Union Carbide in the chemicals each dropped a point or more.

HUGHES FLIES AS HE PLEASES

you build it. I have enough confidence that it will fly.

He took it up on its first test hop, and then smashed all long-distance speed records at an average pace of 332 miles an hour.

Bit Oxygen Hose.

Temperamentally nervous, Hughes is stone-like in the cockpit of a racing airplane. On his transcontinental record flight, he almost lost consciousness at an altitude of 22,000 feet when a special oxygen face mask failed to function.

He calmly bit in two the rubber hose leading to his oxygen tank and sucked on the gas until his head was clear.

The Hughes fortune largely was due to his father's invention of a rotary drill bit for sinking oil wells. The elder Hughes founded the Hughes Tool company, in Houston, of which the son is board chairman.

Born rich, Hughes followed his father's technical bent. The Hughes home-made automobile was a common sight in Houston. At 15 he had taken his first flight. In his twenties, he established himself as one of Hollywood's foremost movie producers.

Keeps Full Logs.

Like his father, Hughes is attracted by anything scientific. When he flies, he works every minute. His "logs" are "complete." At the close of a flight he can rattle off his average fuel consumption, cylinder head temperatures, mainfold pressures, the altitudes at which he navigated, his speed and even the temperature of the air outside the plane.

For his current flight, he installed every piece of scientific apparatus in his "Lockheed 14" transport that came to mind.

He lives simply but indulges a voracious appetite. He care nothing for clothes, has often been seen with unpressed trousers. He has been known to touch his lips to one cocktail an entire evening and leave the glass brimfull. He does not smoke. He plays golf in the low 70's.

From time to time movie press agents have tried to link Hughes' name with actresses, but he remains single.

LOVE IN DANGER

By KATHRYN BEMIS

(Copyright, 1938)

CHAPTER I

BENNIE MAYTON'S internationally famous orchestra was weaving synthetic melody through the whispering walls of the Continental club on its fall opening night. Constantly, rainbow color flitted across the spun-glass electroliers, across the dance floor of shining maplewood and resiliant cork; constantly, the long low room throbbed with a langourous glamor that crept insidiously through the veins of the dancers, cementing dangling romance or platonic friendship, or ripening interest into love. It was to such setting as this that a man brought the girl of his heart for lavish entertainment, for whispered words of endearment, for the settlement of a lovers' quarrel.

Halcomb Williams, beau par excellence of the city of Mumford, brought all his girl-friends here to impress them with what an oil magnate's son could command in the way of imported champagne and superior cuisine; what it would mean to bask permanently in his scintillating personality, fooling them all except one girl, with his hypocritical lovemaking.

"Why so somber, Ray?" he asked her now, drawing her slim perfection a little closer.

They were fox-trotting in the center of the crowded dance floor, as much tete-a-tete as they could have been in one of her aunt's intimate reception rooms in fashionable Dormer street.

Ramona Hunt edged away from his too possessive grasp His coal-black eyes smiled sardonically into her troubled blue ones This short, wiry young man an accredited member of her set for the past three years, was becoming a drag on her tolerance

She couldn't endure his little close-clipped black mustache, the thin, drooping mouth beneath it camouflaged by his quick smile She couldn't endure his overbearing way with women, the dark hair curling on the backs of his hands his propensity for strong drink She couldn't exactly give her reason why his whole personality grated so thoroughly on her. Perhaps it wasn't being fair to him she thought She was the only girl in her crowd who wouldn't snatch the chance of marrying Hal - and the millions.

Being instinctively kind, she now forced a smile. "Your imagination is running rampant again," she said. "Only—I do get satiated with the lack of initiative shown by the people we know—even the most brilliant of them. They all wear a jaded look—from the exertion of thinking up new games to play. Maybe if we all tried a little serious work—"

Halcomb Williams scowled unpleasantly There came that high pitch in his voice, always noticeable when he was excited or angry.

"What more could a rare orchid like you wish for? You're no drone. The rate at which you flit about socially makes the rest of us look like pikers. You're not made for serious things, Ray—you couldn't even act the part. Be yourself, darling—I might even ask you to marry me."

"What—again?" came from her dryly.

* * *

The orchestra was finishing the number and Ray was glad to slip from the arms of this persistent suitor. She tried a negligent laugh, as they went back to their table. She said lightly, "Must I remind you that my wedding is set for my twentieth birthday—at high noon in Aunt Lucy's east room. I've even selected the bridesmaids!"

"And the groom?"

"Of course not! I shall probably pick him at random"

"You tantalizing creature! Two years to wait! I'll be an old man of thirty-one by then"

He pulled back her chair and she sat down

"It's no use, Ray—I refuse to be put off any longer."

"I'm not asking you to wait," she reminded him cooly. "I've already rejected your magnanimous offer"

He dropped into the opposite chair. A dark frown settled on his extraordinary face, which could nearly achieve the feat of being simultaneously handsome and ugly.

"Come now, darling—let's drink to our future—"

"Thank you—not to our future—only to this present And may I remain in single blessedness for two whole years—unhampered by scowling males"

She lifted a glass of ginger ale to her delicately rouged lips, smiled over its rim with provoking insolence

"Caviar and ginger ale!" he scoffed. "A fatal combination for ever a cast-iron digestion!"

"We've discussed that before, haven't we?" she said, deliberately sweet.

He finished his martini in glowering silence Sometimes he himself didn't know why he hung around so maddeningly indifferent a girl

* * *

Against the tinkle of ice, of silver against china, against the steady hum of voices, now came the latest hit-tune, "My Only One" The orchestra swung into the melody with irresistible rhythm

"This is too good to miss, isn't it?" said Hal, throwing aside his napkin.

Ray did not respond. She scarcely heard him Her gaze was riveted to the tall, broad-shouldered young man standing alone in the entrance. Evidently he had just come in. He stood there looking at Ray as if she were a new specie of female.

She felt color mount her cheeks, her forehead, then realized that Hal was halfway out of his chair. She tore her eyes from the stranger and mechanically got to her feet

Hal led her out to the dance floor, wasted no time in encircling the waist of her mauve net dinner gown with his perfectly tailored tuxedo sleeves He led her expertly across the floor, fitting his sure steps to hers with exact timing Nightly practice had made him an accomplished dancer, and if people wondered why a keen man like Gorden Wilhams, by his indulgence, was making a wastrel out of his only son, it never reached the ears of either Hal or his father. Hal was too good a spender.

No professional artists could surpass the graceful, undulating movements of Ray and Hal now as they glided across the rapidly filling dance space. Half unconsciously, Ray sensed this. Being Hal's partner was elating. It was like floating on a swaying filmy cloud making her feel that she was an ethereal winged angel. She sometimes wondered if this were the reason she was impelled to go out with Hal so often. There were many other men determined to date her, yet she found herself with Halcomb Williams altogether too frequently. It was making him a bit overconfident.

* * *

Her glance strayed over his narrow shoulder to the widearched doorway, but the fascinating stranger had vanished. Her eyes quickly roamed the softly lighted room and at last caught his penetrating appraisal of her from where he was sitting at a table by the orchestra. It sent a sharp, nearly painful quiver of anticipation racing through her. Purposely, she looked squarely at Hal, remarking tritely, "Nice crowd here tonight."

He flashed her a quizzical glance "So said meanfully, "There are practically no people here as nice as—us, darling," and gave her slim waist gentle pressure "Thank heaven, none of our crowd has barged in yet to take you away from me"

"They're all out to the new Blossom Hills Inn," she said, relieved to converse about something other than matrimony.

"That's why I brought you here—so I could have you to myself," he said, carefully watching her reaction.

He saw a startled, nearly frightened expression flit across her face, felt a tap on his shoulder He released her as a matter of course, encountering a tall stranger a brief instant. Then Ray was swept away in the young man's arms on the first bar of a sweetly plaintive waltz.

"The name's Frank Armstrong—and you're Ray Hunt. Forgive the hasty introduction—please. I've been angling to meet you for ages"

In spite of herself she could not feel offended

"It sounds like a compliment. Is it?" she fended cautiously.

She liked his deep-set, friendly gray eyes, his wide, square shoulders, his fine brown hair. She wondered a little at the combination of his rugged jaw and sensitive lips His rich baritone voice had already done something to her She was slightly concerned over it

He seemed to realize this and said, "Please don't be alarmed—I can explain. I've been in town only a few weeks. I was sent from New York to—on a special mission. I've seen your pictures in the papers—studied your face."

"Studied me?" she asked, amazed

"Why—yes. You seemed exactly the type of girl I've always thought existed—but it's taken a long time to find you," he confessed frankly

He smiled down at her whimsically.

"I knew your eyes would be the misty, dreamy blue of the sky on a hazy June day—your lashes and high-browed brows, black. I like your cute patrician nose, your lips - well—I should have been an artist"

He gave a confused laugh.

"Hope you don't think me crude, Miss Hunt—but you see—I had to meet you. There was no other way but to introduce myself."

Her nicely rouged, firm little lips trembled for no reason she could have explained. Certainly, she had no fear of him now. She got herself in hand, but it was one of the most difficult things she had ever done

"I'm glad you did," she assured him quickly. Somehow, it was impossible to be provoked at him. He intuitively commanded her respect—and something far more poignant, which she could not immediately recognize.

He stumbled now on the toe of her black slipper.

"Forgive me—I'm not too good a dancer," he apologized, redfaced

"Shall we go out to the Terrace?" she suggested impulsively

He brightened, led her across the room, and outside under the darkly threatening, moonless September sky.

* * *

She stood looking up at it, barely conscious of her arm linked through his "Mysterious, isn't it? Wouldn't it be odd if people were dancing on some of those planets?"

"Or accomplishing something worth while—something to advance the progress of their race—something which would bring comfort—security to millions. Or is that a bromide"

She took her arm from his, faced him wonderingly

"On the contrary, you're—you're very remarkable," she returned Why had no man ever said such things to her before, she thought swiftly.

"Eternally chasing butterflies gets tiresome," she acknowledged eagerly. "I'm beginning to detest it Lately, I've been thinking what a futile existence I lead"

"What a coincidence!"

"Coincidence? I'm afraid I don't understand."

"You might be interested in what I have to offer. A young woman like you—one who gets around—is needed in a certain business"

"Really? Tell me about it"

"I'm from the Union Detective Agency I actually forced myself upon you tonight to get you to help me"

Her self-esteem wilted abruptly So this peculiar man only wanted to make use of her! "How—amusing," she uttered, in her most supercilious manner.

He did not seem to notice.

"Could you come down tomorrow morning? The office is in the First National Bank building. Ask for Mr. Roper—"

"But—Mr Armstrong—what am I supposed to do for your concern? I'm afraid I'd be no good at sleuthing. Besides—Aunt Lucy might object. I do, you know have to consider Aunt Lucy."

"Certainly — if she's discreet. This isn't a job we'd like you identified with, Miss Hunt. No one must know."

* * *

Ray did some rapid thinking. Aunt Lucy with whom she lived, the woman who had mothered her since she was a baby, was anything but discreet. No, Aunt Lucy would frown upon her niece working, in the first place and, in the second, would certainly consider having a niece employed by a detective agency an affront to the grand old family name.

"It would certainly be a calamity if Aunt Lucy discovered I was a paid sleuth," laughed Ray, a trifle uneasily.

"It could hardly be called that. It would call for only the lightest of duties. Even your intimate friends wouldn't suspect what you were doing—and it might prove rather exciting."

"Exciting? you're very provocative, Mr. Armstrong. If I ever could get excited over anything again, it would be worth taking on—no matter what happened. I suppose I'd be floating around with gangsters and their molls—with all sorts of suspicious characters — instead of my nightly round of dinner, theater, supper, dance—and often, breakfast."

"But how—I don't——"

"Will you promise to see Mr. Roper in the morning?" he urged swiftly

She hesitated to tell him that her maid had strict orders not to disturb her before noon any day.

Before she could decide how to reply, a familiar voice exclaimed "Ah, here you are!" It was Hal Williams advancing upon her with his customary aggressiveness

From force of habit, she allowed herself to be led away. At the doorway she looked back over her shoulder and noted Frank Armstrong's crest-fallen expression Defiantly, she called out, "Goodnight, Mr Armstrong. That's a date—tomorrow"

* * *

She began dancing with Hal, a soaring gladness ringing in her ears. She had at last met a man who was different. He thought her capable of doing something other than amuse him. It was heady, and somewhat bewildering.

"That fellow had his nerve—taking you outside," said Hal, crossly. "Who is he?"

Her expression was guileless "Frank Armstrong Haven't you met him? Sorry"

"Never saw him before in my life. He had no right to drag you out——"

"Don't be childish, Hal He didn't drag me anywhere I went of my own free will."

"Anyway—He doesn't belong to our crowd—hasn't even the look of belonging"

"Wonderful!"

"You mean you could go for him—a fellow out of your class?"

"That might be possible," she faltered, perplexed at herself.

Hal's sensual face took on a fawning tenderness from which she shrank. He showered her with tenderness the remainder of the evening. However, it was not long after this that she insisted upon being taken home, and left him at her aunt's door, nonplused by her indifferent, "Good night—see you soon"

She went directly to her suite and dismissed Mimi, her maid, adding, "Call me at nine-thirty in the morning, please."

This order was nearly as much a surprise to Ray as it was to the maid. She hadn't actually intended to keep the appointment at the agency. She tried to tell herself that it would be dangerous.

False Teeth Wearers Are Worst Breath Offenders!

"Need More Than a Mouth Wash" say Authorities... Recommend Polident

Plates and bridges soak up odors and impurities like a sponge! A thin dark scum collects on them This scum holds germs and decay bacteria It is so tough that ordinary brushing seldom removes it And it gets into every tiny crevice where brushing can't even reach Almost always it results in denture breath'—probably the most offensive of all breath odors

Yet there's a perfect way to clean and purify false teeth without brushing acid or danger It is Polident, the powder that dissolves away all scum stains tarnish and odor Makes breath sweeter and plates or bridges look better and feel better Tens of thousands call Polident a blessing for comfort convenience and hygiene Long-lasting can costs only 30c at any drug store Approved by Good Housekeeping Bureau and dentists everywhere

OUT WEST, TOO, ONE SMOKER TELLS ANOTHER

"CAMELS AGREE WITH ME"

ROUND-UP TIME at the famous Pitchfork Outfit, 200,000 acre Wyoming ranch of Charles J. Belden. The picture above shows "Chuck" Curtis, one of Pitchfork's best at "heeling" calves. Exciting work, but it's plenty tough too. So "Chuck's" cigarette choice is Camel! "When I get dog-tired," he says, "a Camel gives a quick 'lift' to my energy!" And that goes for many another cow-puncher For out west, too, Camel is the favorite cigarette.

COME NIGHTFALL, the Pitchfork bunch sets out at Cook George Weller's chuck-wagon. Ken Stingel wrangles his guitar, while the boys vocalize that good old favorite, "Home on the Range." Camels aplenty here, for, as Ted Riegel (right of coffee pot) puts it, "After you've tucked away a hearty meal, there's nothing like a Camel 'for digestion's sake'—and for extra-mild, tasty smokin' too. And most top-hands'll go along with that sentiment, all right We say Camel's the cigarette that agrees with us—all 'round!"

Are Camels different from other cigarettes? "Yes," say smokers all over America. Millions know the big difference Camels make in smoking pleasure. Camels set you right!

CHUCK, HOW COULD ANYBODY SAY THAT ALL CIGARETTES ARE ALIKE? CAMELS ARE SURE 'WAY AHEAD IN MY ESTIMATION!
NO SIR—I DON'T GO FOR THE IDEA OF ALL CIGARETTES BEIN' ALIKE. CAMELS ARE A SIGHT DIFFERENT FROM OTHER CIGARETTES. I'VE BEEN OPEN-MINDED AND TRIED 'EM ALL, BUT I ALWAYS COME BACK TO CAMELS. I FIND CAMELS AGREE WITH ME!

COW-PUNCHERS Curtis and Riegel certainly feel that there is a big difference between Camels and other cigarettes Read what they say—at right!

"Finer, more expensive tobaccos—that's why we smoke Camels," say the men who grow and grade tobacco

PlanterJesseT. Hardy brings out the fact that Camel buyers take the better grades on the market. He says: "For years Camel has bought my best tobacco—paid more to get it. We planters around here smoke Camels because we know Camel buys the finer tobaccos."

"Raising tobacco is my business." says John Thomas Caraway, veteran grower. "Camel bought the best of my last season's crop, as they have for many a year. So I know Camel gets finer COSTLIER tobaccos. Naturally, Camel is the big favorite with us growers."

HUGHES LANDS PLANE IN PARIS IN 16 HOURS

first airmen to bridge New York and Paris in an easterly direction since Lindbergh's feat. Many prominent Americans were among the crowds seeking a glimpse of the handsome young bachelor and his intrepid aids.

Newspapermen and photographers had the right of way to the side of the glistening air liner and for several minutes immediately following their arrivals the center of the field was a mass of struggling humanity.

Flashlight bulbs sputtered and cameras ground while the crowd set up a yell that promised to develop into a demonstration paralleling that accorded Lindbergh in 1927.

Indicating that Hughes planned to continue after only a short delay, several gasoline trucks roared out of a hangar on the edge of the field soon after the landing and the work of refueling was begun. Moscow is said to be Hughes' next scheduled stop, with Alaska and Canada the only other stops before the fliers end their world argosy back in New York.

Throughout the long trip, Hughes had remained in almost constant contact with New York by means of the powerful radio sets aboard his plane. But when his goal had been reached, he was reduced to transaltantic silence by the press of the crowds at the field. Radio attaches could not get close enough to him with their microphones.

Newsmen Surprised.

The speed of Hughes' crossing took newspapermen assigned to Le Bourget completely by surprise. The local air station had heard from him only infrequently, and while radio listeners in New York knew he was due about noon, the reporters never dreamed of such a possibility.

The result was that they took one look at the silver plane to make sure of its identity, then ran helter-skelter to telephones to flash the time of arrival to their offices before rushing back to interview the fliers.

United States Ambassador William C. Bullitt, heading a large official delegation, was the first to reach Hughes. He offered congratulations to the handsome flier, who said simply:

"It was a fine trip. It took us something over 16 hours and a half."

The mayor of Paris was by Bullitt's side, ready to receive from him the handful of invitations to the New York world's fair entrusted to Hughes by Grover Whalen before the flight started.

That was the official highlight of the journey, for this great adventure was undertaken as a good-will venture to bring closer together the people of America and France through the medium of the colorful "city of the future" now arising from mud and swamps on the shores of Flushing bay.

Crowds Cheer Him.

At 12:22 p. m., almost half an hour after he had landed, Hughes was finally extricated from the mass of humanity which surrounded him and pushed before a microphone. A tremendous burst of cheering arose as he started to speak.

Even then, however, the attempt failed. The cheering was so loud and incessant that Hughes' words could not be heard, and for the time being the effort was abandoned.

"The jam is too great," the announcer told those around him. "We can't do anything just now."

Ambassador Bullitt then came forward and took Hughes away from the "mikes," insisting that it was more important he be given time to rest.

It was while he was under Bullitt's wing that this correspondent reached Hughes' side for a word or two.

"I'm a little weary," Hughes confessed. "I was at the controls all the way."

Pale under a stubby beard, Hughes was wearing a soiled white shirt and the floppy brown felt hat he slapped on his head at the start. He was bareheaded when the plane landed, but he was seen to reach over and put the headpiece on before facing the adulation of Paris.

Mechanics of the K.L.M. (Dutch) air lines and representatives of the Sperry company, which equipped the craft, swarmed aboard as soon as they could break through the crowds. It was obvious Hughes planned to get away as soon as possible and there were some reports he hoped to reach Moscow by 9 o'clock tonight.

French newspapers had announced Hughes and his crew would reach Le Bourget at 9 p. m. (5 p. m. E. S. T.) as a result, while the field was well crowded by the time he arrived, the spectators were only a fraction of those who would have been on hand at the later hour.

At the time he set his plane down, the roads leading into Le Bourget were jammed to capacity by automobiles containing sightseers anxious to welcome the fliers. Traffic was demoralized over a wide area and it was considered unlikely any attempt would be made to take Hughes into Paris proper.

Airport attaches and French broadcasters were demoralized also. New York representatives kept calling over and over asking for details and statements but the Frenchmen were so excited they were unable to supply the information wanted.

Hughes' first concern was about his oil supply. He asked whether a sufficient quantity of oil actually imported from America was available to fill up his tanks. If not, he demanded that they be emptied and filled entirely with the local product. He apparently did not want to risk mixing two different types.

Hughes and his party were cheered by 10,000 persons as the heavily laden plane christened "New York World's Fair 1939," was sent down the Floyd Bennett airport to a perfect take-off.

Hughes was accompanied by Lieut. Harry Connor, co-pilot; Thomas L. Thurlow, navigator; Edward Lund, mechanic; and Richard Stoddart, radio engineer.

Aided by an early tail-wind, the ship swept up the coastline at a speed exceeding 160 miles an hour. In a moonlit sky it glided 8,000 feet over the Bay of Fundy off Nova Scotia but off the Newfoundland coastline it encountered fog and rain.

Hughes lifted his huge ship over the fog and at 1:50 a. m. he had reported:

"If I had been able to give a report two hours ago I could have used a saying familiar to all flyers, 'light rain outside, heavy rain inside.' I mean by that it was raining outside and our windshield was leaking. Now just ahead I can see daylight breaking."

With that he continued on over the Atlantic, scaling low-hanging clouds as he pointed the ship's nose for the British Isles.

Try To Contact Europe.

After daybreak, Hughes and his associates spent considerable time trying to contact foreign radio stations. Because of this and atmospheric conditions, the contact base at the world's fair site here had difficulty getting in touch with the plane.

At 5:25 a. m., however, contact was made and while Hughes did not comment on his fuel supply the report indicated everything aboard was satisfactory. The ship was zooming through broken clouds.

When the plane left here it carried the heaviest load—47 pounds per square foot of wing spread—ever taken aboard a transport ship. Because of this nearly all—except 100 feet—of Floyd Bennett's runway was traversed before Hughes lifted the plane into the air.

Preceding the take-off was a brief ceremony in which Grover Whalen, president of the fair, handed Hughes a bundle of letters to be delivered to heads of European governments. They contained invitations for foreign airmen to visit the 1939 spectacle.

Stocked in the ship's cabin was sufficient food to provide for Hughes and his companions for more than a month. In addition to the food, each of the five aboard carried an emergency kit containing fishing tackle, hunting knives, a snake-bite kit and a first-aid kit. Parachutes and two rubber lifeboats also were carried as an added precaution.

'Glad He Made It,' Star Hepburn Says.

SAYBROOK, Conn. — (INS) — "I'm awfully glad to hear he made it," said Katherine Hepburn, movie star vacationing here, when told Howard Hughes had landed safely at Le Bourget Field, Paris, after smashing all trans-Atlantic flight records.

"Just like him," she added, when told that he intended to refuel at once and take off for Moscow, on his round the world flight effort.

She admitted having been at the radio most of the night, listening to reports of progress of the flight, only to fall asleep before the actual landing time.

Hughes visited the star, with whom his name has been frequently linked in recent months, at Saybrook yesterday, before returning to New York for a brief rest before the take-off from Floyd Bennett Field.

10:43 a. m.—Hughes reported rapidly approaching Le Bourget Field, Paris.

10:55 a. m.—Hughes landed at Le Bourget field.

BARBARA WEDS A HARD-RIDING KNIGHT OF EAST

This is the fourth of six articles on the life of Countess Barbara Hutton von Haugwitz-Reventlow by Helen Welshimer, well-known writer.

By HELEN WELSHIMER

NEW YORK CITY — So the prince caught up with Barbara—the hard-riding, dashing, charming, handsome young knight about whom she had dreamed in her ivory tower!

His name was Prince Alexis Mdivani. He was a prince of Georgia, Russia, one of three brothers whose advent at European watering places had titillated feminine hearts.

Perhaps a Cossack ancestry accounted for his passion for ponies—polo ponies. Princess Babbs later said he loved his horses more than he loved her. The dream had begun to crack.

But not only did he love fast horses. He loved fast motor cars, which later caused his death.

Brothers Do Well.

Alexis had been married formerly to Louise Astor Van Alen, a New York heiress. His brother, Prince David, had married Mae Murray, movie princess. His other brother, Prince Serge, not to be outdone, had married Pola Negri, also of the screen. Divorces terminated all of the marriages.

The magic carpet had taken Barbara Hutton to Bangkok, Siam. Mdivani pursued her even before his divorce. From Bangkok came to the world the news of her engagement. She had found her knight. With him she took the liner Chitral from the Orient for an idyllic passage up the Red sea, through the Suez canal, past old Egypt, and into the blue Mediterranean to Marseilles on the Cote d'Azure. At the same time her father and stepmother hastened from New York to Cherbourg. Babs and the Mdivani dashed northward from the Riviera to Paris, the Franklyn Huttons southward to meet them.

Mdivani made a nobleman's gesture. Barbara the gesture of a multi-millionairess. She settled upon him $1,000,000; he relinquished all future claim to her fortune. (But, when he died, he left an estate of $3,000,000.)

Only In Books?

A civil ceremony was followed by a wedding few American girls could have dreamed of. Prince Alexis was a communicant of the ancient Russian Orthodox church, that branch of the old Roman Catholic church which, with the break-up of the Roman empire, had continued on at Byzantium long after St. Peter's had succumbed to the vandals. All the rich and ancient tradition of that ritual surrounded Barbara at the ceremony held in the Russian Orthodox church in Paris.

Barbara's trousseau cost $50,000. She had an ermine coat which cost $5,999, and another for which she paid $4,579.

Royalty and the international elite of Europe flocked to the wedding. Barbara's world was now peopled with the storybook figures of her childhood.

Then, on her magic carpet, she took her prince around the world. Barbara's twenty-second birthday found them back in Paris. She gave a birthday party. It cost $10,000. "We didn't think it good taste to spend too much in these times," Prince Mdivani told newspaper reporters.

The Dream Fades.

A year after that gala party Barbara's first dream faded. The knight who had come out of the east returned to the east. He went off to India with his ponies—to play polo. Barbara returned for the moment to reality, to the harsh reality of the Reno divorce court.

Meanwhile a stern-visaged knight from the north was riding toward Reno and Barbara.

Tomorrow: The Stern Knight From the North.

Farmer Posts Sign Inviting Lovers To Park In His Lane.

BELLAIRE — (U.P.) — Farmer Harry Smith of Warnock has posted a big sign on a road leading to a woods near his home.

The sign says: "Lover's Lane—all welcome."

Farmer Smith said he placed the sign because other residents of the neighborhood had complained to police about petters blocking side roads.

"If they want to pet, they're welcome to park in my woods," he said.

MONDAY, JULY 11, 1938.

Indian summer is getting an early start in the American league.

If "one good term deserves another" what should two poor ones get you?

Those who are listed among Sunday's killed or injured in auto accidents also started out in the confident belief that it couldn't happen to them.

People Want to Buy.

THERE is not only a lot of idle money in this country, but there are a lot of people ready to spend, when properly approached.

A good tip-off to the situation came recently from a business columnist who told of 14 men sitting around a luncheon table and informally telling of $12,000 worth of goods and services they had the money to buy, and would buy if properly approached. They merely lacked the initiative to do it without being asked.

Striking corroboration comes from Lorain, where The Journal sent out four reporters to get a line on potential spending power. Each was told to talk to about ten persons, confining their interviews to men and women with salaried jobs or in business or professions. The inquiry was guaranteed as confidential.

The people interviewed indicated surprising readiness to buy. More than half of them, 25 out of 40, were in the market for purchases amounting to more than $10,000. Their unsatisfied wants included an auto radio, $300 worth of new furniture, repainting a house, new clothes, a new automobile, a summer cottage, a home, a used car, a lot for a home, a bookcase, remodeling a house, a wrist watch, a summer dress, a victrola with records, a fur coat, a garage, furniture for a living room, an addition to a home, a breakwall on waterfront property, fire insurance for furniture, and so on.

In every instance, it appears, money was being withheld from circulation largely because there had been a dropping off in sales efforts by merchants, due to lack of realization than a vast majority of people are as well able as ever to buy what they want.

The moral seems obvious: If you have something to sell let people know about it.

Among the Truly Great.

BENJAMIN CARDOZO, as a justice of the United States Supreme Court and in his earlier legal and judicial experience, was representative of the principles of sound liberalism through which this nation has progressed, and will continue to progress.

His was a liberalism based on broad education and keen understanding of the natural obstacles that stand in the way of more rapid achievement.

Recognized as one of the outstanding scholars of the Supreme Court bench, Justice Cardozo approached each problem in humble recognition that the law is not an exact science, and that there can be no assurance of being "exactly right" in a legal opinion.

Realizing that jurists, even on the Supreme Court, are influenced by tendencies of their lives entirely apart from practice of the "science" of law, Justice Cardozo once wrote:

> "There is in each of us a stream of tendency, whether you choose to call it philosophy or not, which gives coherence and direction to thought and action. Judges cannot escape that current any more than other mortals. All their lives, forces which they do not recognize and cannot name, have been tugging at them—inherited instincts, traditional beliefs, acquired convictions; and the resultant is an outlook on life, a conception of social needs . . . which, when reasons are nicely balanced, must determine where choice must fall."

Born in New York City, Justice Cardozo was graduated from Columbia University at the age of 19 and a year later was awarded his Master's degree. At that time a professor noted that the youthful Cardozo was writing the purest English since Alexander Hamilton. This art later lent literary as well as judicial value to his work and his writings were characterized by their flawless English and a gifted turn of phrase.

A Democrat, but inactive in politics, Cardozo was named to the Supreme Court bench in 1932 by President Hoover, with such general approval as has seldom been accorded an appointee to the highest court.

Achieving far above the ordinary in knowledge, Justice Cardozo continued through life as an earnest student, always seeking to learn more. He was an omnivorous reader and spent many evenings delving into a volume of Greek or Latin.

Benjamin Cardozo was a great justice of the Supreme Court and a great American—a man of exceptional talents who gave liberally of those talents for the advancement of his country and its people.

Fortunate is the nation in which the principle of equality of opportunity is so firmly fixed that all may benefit therefrom.

Forecast Future Population.

LATEST population prophecies given out by the government are unusually interesting. The nation, according to experts, will reach a peak of 158,000,000 by 1988, fifty years from now, and from then on will dwindle. Some recent estimates have forecast a lower peak, coming sooner.

The most remarkable phase of the new figures is the prospective change of size in age-groups. The number of people from 20 to 44 years old will increase only 6 per cent, they say, while the number from 15 to 64 will increase 69 per cent. Apparently it is going to be an old folks' civilization.

But prophecy in vital statistics is not an exact science, and these experts might be wrong. There are too many unknown factors. The government could easily speed up the rate of increase, including the birthrate, by admitting more immigrants. Or there would be a natural and spontaneous increase of population if somehow we entered a period of more economic stability, with a rise in the general level of prosperity.

"Inferiority complex" works out in strange ways. The Japs might not be so fierce if they were taller.

Proverbs, 12-15: "The way of a fool is right in his own eyes"—as you may have noticed.

Keeping Step

—By LESLIE EICHEL

RECORD wheat receipts in the southwest are a steadying, hopeful influence for business—even though large wheat production weakens grain prices.

Here we have a natural addition to our resources, to the resources of the entire world, for that matter. But the world cannot buy, for our system of exchange is tangled up in a mass of man-made complications.

In the meantime, Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace makes known that the government is preparing to make a wheat loan on the 1938 crop of $100,000,000—because of the crop "surplus." The wheat crop is estimated to be 250,000 bushels above domestic requirements.

* * *

ANOTHER CROP

There is another crop in the making—second quarter and third quarter corporation reports. If the stock market can absorb them, it can absorb anything. But it probably will absorb them—for it senses a definite upturn late this year.

Some of the worst showings for the third quarter may be made by steel companies. The cut in prices will not yet have drawn in sufficient business to overcome the loss in revenue on old business. Incidentally, the CIO may make wage concessions to U. S. Steel. Office workers, not organized, already have had to take a cut. If lower wages, however, mean more business, more work, nobody will be the loser.

The reduced steel prices should interest the auto companies soon. The steel industry cannot go far unless it does interest the auto industry—which in a measure has been on a sitdown strike for lower prices.

The auto industry itself evidently is figuring closely on reducing prices of certain cars in November to interest the class of buyers which has some money but did not buy this year because of somewhat higher prices. Another sitdown.

* * *

BETTER MOVIES

Motion picture companies also have been having troubles. Distributors have been in a sitdown mood over signing contracts for long-term requirements. The distributors believe pictures have not been good enough, rentals have been too high and studios have been too sketchy concerning product yet to come.

As a matter of fact, studios have been spending considerable money on new pictures without waiting for the sitdowners to sign up. They have been maintaining a fair degree of courage.

Costs have come down, and one imagines that rentals also have. But what will draw people to the theaters in large numbers? Certainly not merely expensive productions. Greater imagination, greater talent.

The world needs that in every walk of life. People must be aroused from their weariness and lethargy before we can go ahead.

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

"THE WINNING OF THE WEST"

Chamberlain's Policy of Isolation

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—Premier Neville Chamberlain of Great Britain takes practically the same position, as to the war in Spain, that safety-first folk in this country took in the early days of the world conflict.

It was perfectly evident toward the end of 1914 or early in 1915, at any rate, that eastern European waters were dangerous for neutral shipping as well as for the shipping of the belligerent nations. However, these were very profitable waters for our vessels to trade in, provided, as we say, that they could "get away with it."

Naturally we had interests which were more than willing to take chances, for the profits' sake—if their boats escaped being torpedoed. And they were able to find Americans to man these craft. They knew it was dangercus, but the pay was high.

* * *

PROTECTION "DEMANDED"

Well, I would not say that American ship owners and American exporters and American seamen were unentitled to run whatever risks they chose to accept, so long as they did it on their own responsibility.

The trouble was that these folk considered the whole American people responsible for them. They insisted on being protected from home—or avenged, anyway, if they did meet with disaster. It always seemed to me that they ought to have kept out of zones of obvious danger unless they could take care of themselves—or take the consequences.

I admit it is aggravating to have the American flag disregarded, but, for that matter, it is deplorable to have it disregarded by a Caribbean cyclone—and that war was about as undiscriminating as a cyclone.

Ships get out of the way of cyclones. Why shouldn't they keep clear of war zones?

* * *

180 MILLION RESPONSIBLE?

Americans even traveled through the World war zone on the ships of belligerent countries.

For one, I did, on an English ship—and we were chased by German submarines which did not overtake us, however. My wife and I were the only American passengers on the Araguaya, bound out of Liverpool, in 1916, for Buenos Aires. Had we been submarined and drowned, would we have had much excuse for demanding vengeance for our two lives by 120,000,000 of our fellow Americans?—just because my personal convenience had tempted me into that area?

The idea is:

If you want to be a patriotic American, keep away from national jeopardy—or take your own chances.

* * *

CHAMBERLAIN'S POLICY

Premier Chamberlain has followed this policy, thus far, a deal more literally than Woodrow Wilson finally did.

He does not support British blockade runners in Spanish waters.

That war, be it understood, is not exclusively Spanish.

Half of Spain is what we would call the democratic side of it. The other half is Fascist or Nazi-istic—supported by Italy and Germany. And supported physically. The other side is supported by Russia—communistic.

* * *

ISOLATON SOUGHT

Which do you prefer? Fascist-Nazi-ism or communism?

Neither, probably.

Ditto Premier Chamberlain. He simply does not want to have John Bull drawn into the muss.

His proposition is that he objects to having British ships involved either way.

His motto is:

"Keep out of this, anyhow."

But we did not keep out of the World war.

Timely Editorial

Let the Jobholders Pay, Too.

Nowhere is the principle of equality more important than in the matter of taxation. Nowhere is that principle subjected to greater abuse than in the income tax exemptions now favoring public officials and employees throughout the country.

These are the state and local jobholders who pay no federal income tax, and the federal jobholders who pay no state income tax. Coupled with this situation is the long-standing and much-criticized exemption of state and federal securities.

The injustice of this favoritism is plain, and it rankles the citizen who must pay taxes to support the jobholders who in turn are relieved from their obligations in that respect.

If there is one class of people in the country who should pay a full share of government costs it is the class that lives by and on government.—Kansas City Star.

Health Advice

How Books Are Aid to Recovery.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

BIBLIOTHERAPY is the name given to that form of treatment which consists of reading books. Sometimes the book may be a treatise on the disease the patient has, and sometimes it may be only fiction.

I know one doctor who never starts his day's rounds without piling up 10 to 15 books to give his patients. Most of them in his practice have tuberculosis and they lead a monotonous life, resting in bed. Anyone enjoys a book more when it has been recommended by someone whom they like and admire, so the doctor's literary prescriptions pass away many a long hour.

There are a large number of books designed for instructing patients in certain diseases—three especially—diabetes, tuberculosis and arthritis. Manuals on diabetes for instructing patients are Joslin's, John's, Wilder's, McHenry's. They give instructions in calculating diets, examining urine, administering insulin, etc. Good tuberculosis manuals are by Hawes and Webb. "Conquering Arthritis" by Margolis is a valuable book of instruction in that field.

Help the Nervous.

Another large group of books deal with nervous and psychologic troubles—"Outwitting Our Nerves" by Jackson and Salisbury, "The Human Mind" by Menninger, "Discovering Ourselves" by Strecker and Appel, and Adamson's "So You're Going to a Psychiatrist." One patient under treatment found some ideas in Jackson and Salisbury's "Outwitting Our Nerves" which gave her more help for her insomnia than her doctor did.

But the majority of cures along this line comes from reading fiction, or general literature. A neurotic personality finds escape in the adventure novels of Zane Grey or the historical romances of Conan Doyle. "The White Company" is calculated to take the sick man's mind off himself for two to three hours.

Patients of nervous habit tend to identify themselves with some character in a book and they get satisfaction in this way, because they are in imagination at least successful and happy, which helps their inferiority complex. "Gone With the Wind" was read by two patients, one of whom identified herself with Scarlett to her great satisfaction. Another identified her husband, with whom she was on bad terms, with Rhett Butler, the cruel and ruthless individualist.

Cleanliness As a Character Builder

"Like father, like son," is an old adage which Harry A. Overstreet has cast into new form in his "Influencing Human Behavior." A dirty home, he declares, makes for disorderly habits in children.

"Obviously, if the home is crowded, dirty, noisy, we can hardly wonder if habits of vagrancy are developed," he states. "Our juvenile case records are full of the amazement of respectable parents that their children should have gone astray.

"But a single glance at a customary home — children sharing the same room; a dark kitchen with unwashed dishes; a mass of uninteresting furniture; father sleeping late on Sunday morning; stale air; mother padding about in a torn kimono and unkempt hair; later father and mother wrangling; brothers and sisters wrangling; clotheslines and garbage cans; here are permanent association factors which powerfully affect the social and domestic habits of young people."

Young America Says---

Make Home Life Attractive.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

WHY DOES YOUTH LEAVE HOME?

"Because, sometimes, a dog wouldn't stay there!"

That's the answer of Educators and Social Service workers to the problem of the delinquent child. Give a child an attractive friendly home and interested, sympathetic parents AND HE WON'T SEEK THE CORNER POOL ROOM.

FILTH AND UNFRIENDLINESS CAUSE CRIME.

There's a slogan Young America can understand. And Rose Rudick of Pittsburgh, Pa., believes that slogan should be broadcast.

"Dear Miss Robinson:

"In a recent letter, John R. Coniff, of Jersey City, N. J., spoke of breaking up the street-corner 'gang.' There is only one way to do this—and that is to MAKE THE HOME MORE ATTRACTIVE. Nearly every gang member comes from a home where there is either poor, slovenly housekeeping, a gadabout mother, a nagging parent, or where partiality is shown a brother or sister.

"A clean, attractive home where he can bring friends, parents who can sympathize with childhood and adolescent problems, and respect for his privacy, are as necessary to the youngster as his three meals a day.

"It is no wonder that a youngster grown up in an atmosphere of poverty, filth, drunkenness, neglect, should turn to the street-corner gang for thrills and excitement that are a poor substitute for a happy home life.

"MAKE THE HOME A DESIRABLE PLACE, WARM WITH KINDNESS AND LOVE, AND YOU'LL SAVE YOUNG AMERICA FROM THE STREET CORNER GANG THAT EVENTUALLY LEADS TO CRIME."

THEN comes Joseph Kardos of Toledo, Ohio, with a few more fiery remarks on SUBSIDIZED ATHLETICS. Joseph agrees it's a shameful practice. But who's responsible? Listen and prepare for a shock.

"Dear Miss Robinson:

"I agree with the claim about Subsidized Athletics. That's the system; why try to deny it? But who's to blame? Is it the penniless kid who has to find some money somewhere? No, it isn't!

"IT'S THE FAULT OF THE DIGNIFIED, CULTURED, 'HIGH-MINDED' MEN WHO ARE BACKING THE UNIVERSITY...THE PROFESSORS, DEANS AND BOSSY ALUMNI WHO HAVE BUILT THE BEAUTIFUL BUILDINGS AND WHO MUST NOW PUT ON A SHOW THAT WILL PAY FOR THEM!

"Why do they have scouts out looking for the best athletes? Why do they take High School stars on tours and treat them like prima donnas? Why do these Educated Big Shots bid against each other like a lot of crazy auctioneers? Is it because they are so anxious to educate some fine young man? NO, IT'S BECAUSE THEY WANT TO PUT ON THE BIGGEST AND MOST PROFITABLE SHOW SO THEY CAN FILL THE COLLEGE TREASURY.

"Yes, I admit it's a rotten system. Once I had ideals, too, like most college athletes. But ask any fellow who has been through the mill and who once refused the payments he might have had, and see what he says now. I'll tell you...he'll say—I'VE BEEN A SUCKER'!"

Joseph Kardos—age 30,
1445 Indiana Ave., Toledo, O.
($10 prize winner)

That's a ghastly arraignment of many a proud institution, Joe. And perhaps it's true, in some cases. But, for every such commercialized campus, there are scores of honest, struggling little schools whose ideals shine like beacon lights through life for their proud and devoted students. Sneer at the Big Racket if you must—and as you should—but don't forge to pay tribute to the smaller spots which STAY CLEAN.

* * *

"Dear Elsie Robinson:

"Why is it that most parents can't be told of happenings without 'flaring up'? For instance, a friend of mine failed in a subject in school. As soon as she told her father, he went off the handle and she would never hear the end of it. As if that would help her pass it! Another friend was driving the family car and had an unavoidable accident. Right away her parents got hot and bothered and went in the air. But if they had an accident—that's a different story. They never can see our side; it was just all our fault.

"All this has the effect of making us young people keep such things away from our parents. What do other Young Americans say?"

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—This is a sentimental sort of story—one of those I-remember-and-won't-you-swing-down-memory-lane-with-me sort of things. But ever since I told you about the Bing Crosby concert I've had Dixie Lee on my mind. Dixie is Bing's wife. And this is something that happened some seven years ago. I wonder if she remembers? I doubt if Bing knows anything at all about it.

In those days I was kicking around Columbus, Ohio. The center of attraction there was the Hartman theater, the same theater which Helen Hayes recently called the most beautiful theater she played in on her coast to coast tour.

One day a company of the musical show, "Good News," came to town. And in it was Dixie. And by a coincidence that was the day she received word from Hollywood that the films wanted her. They wanted her to report at the studio as quickly as possible.

* * *

NOW Dixie was a wide-eyed little girl. And she was so excited that she scarcely knew whether she was coming or going. I remember passing H. E. Cherrington, a critic at the time, in the lobby of the theater and he told me that Miss Lee had just had the big word from Hollywood.

Well, when a thing like that happens everybody knows it. All the critics knew it, and all their friends knew it, and pretty soon everybody in the audience was talking about Dixie Lee, the girl in the show and her Hollywood contract. The ushers knew it too, and so did the doorman and the man in the boxoffice.

Meanwhile the curtain went up and at last that fast-stepping comedy of college life was on.

It wasn't any trouble at all to pick out Dixie Lee, even if you didn't recognize her, because everybody was talking about her and nudging their next-door neighbors and saying, "Look, look how excited she is. There she is."

* * *

AND there she was, leaning against a back-drop which was supposed, I imagine, to be the wall of a dormitory. With her was a girl who put some powder on her nose and then said something to Dixie. But Dixie didn't answer. The girl shot the "cue" at her again. Still Dixie didn't answer. And then the girl looked up, and by that time the audience caught what was happening. For there was Dixie, star-gazing, looking off into space, a happy light in her eyes, just a wide-eyed little girl dreaming of Hollywood. For that moment at least she was three thousand miles from Columbus and the rest of the world.

Chuckle? Of course the audience chuckled. It howled. And that laugh was the thing that brought Dixie back to "Good News." What did she do? She did just what any other pretty girl would have done under the circumstances. She jumped and said, "Oh!" in a voice heard all over the theater.

That was a long time ago. And probably the people there have long forgot what "Good News" was about. But I can tell you this. They will always remember the little girl who was lost in a fog of stardust the day her contract came from Hollywood.

FILE DEMURRERS IN TAX SUITS

Demurrers had been filed today in common pleas court by the defendants in four suits which would require them to reveal the amount of personal taxes paid on their properties in the period from 1926 to 1930.

The defendants in the suits, which were filed several months ago by Michael Hallabrin, Mansfield, as a taxpayer, contend in their demurrers that county court has no jurisdiction in the tax suits, that Hallabrin does not have the legal capacity to bring the suits, and that the suits were not filed in the legal time for filing such actions.

The defendants ask the court for oral hearings in the demurrers.

Defendants in the tax cases are Harry S. Black, Donald S. Black, for the estate of the late Frank B. Black; J. A. Rigby and the Citizens National Bank and Trust company as executor of the estate of Burton Preston, deceased.

The original petitions charged that listings of personal property belonging to the defendants' estates were incomplete for the four-year period between 1926 and 1930, and ask that the defendants be required to show the amount of taxes paid in that time.

AUTOIST FINED

One week-end traffic offender was fined in municipal court today while the case of a second charged with two offenses was continued until Saturday.

Arraigned in court today, Goebel Turner, Bedford, Ky., pleaded guilty to a charge of displaying license plates issued for another motor vehicle and was fined $25 and costs. He was arrested by state highway patrolmen on U. S. route 42, north of Mansfield Saturday night.

Morris Fromson, Cleveland, will face Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch Saturday on two counts. He is charged with careless and reckless driving and operating a motor vehicle without an operator's license. Fromson posted a $100 bond after continuance of the case until Saturday had been granted by the court.

Knock Combinations Off Two Safes; Ransack Office.

Police today were investigating the burglary of the Leach-Beamer company, 120 North Mulberry street, over the week-end in which thieves were rewarded with 40 cents loot.

Police were called to the establishment at 7 a. m. today when employes opened the establishment to find the office ransacked, and the combination knocked off two safes.

The officers said that one safe had been opened and the contents rifled. The burgalrs failed to open the other after knocking off the combination, they said. Papers were scattered around the floor and two desks were ransacked. All that was taken was 40 cents from a cash box.

CHARACTER SKETCHES OF FIVE IN RECORD NON-STOP TO PARIS

NEW YORK — (AP) — Here are character sketches of the five men who today completed the second non-stop flight ever made from New York to Paris:

Howard Hughes.

Tall, gangling and shy, in 34 years he has made several million dollars on movies, operated his father's oil-well drill factory and set several records for fast flying. Extremely nervous, slightly deaf, one of America's most careless dressers. Attended four schools, graduated from none.

Calls himself a "sportsman-aviator," but his scientific study of flying ranks him near the top. Drinks moderately, never smokes, plays golf with a handicap of 2. When 18 he inherited $17,000,000, has been adding to it ever since. Born in Houston, Tex.

Richard Stoddart.

Radio engineer for the flight, native of New York City. Education stopped with graduation from Newark, N. J. high school. Is 37 and has worked as radio operator on ships, planes and land stations.

Thomas L. Thurdow.

Navigator, 33. Native of Santa Ana, Calif., first lieutenant in army air corps. At present working on the development of air navigation instruments and is an expert on the subject.

Edward Lund.

Hughes' alternate engineer-mechanic, began career as auto mechanic at Kalispell, Montana, native state. Became associated with Hughes in 1932 and has held several important jobs in airplane factories. He's 32.

Harry P. McLean Conner.

A native of Passaic, N. J., 38, learned navigation as seamon. Holds master's license, and served as navigator for Roger Q. Williams in 1929 and 1930. Gave up aviation to return to the sea several times, but now specializes in seadromes.

"Cheap wages mean low standards of living and that means low taxable values and therefore difficulty in maintaining good schools, highways, sanitation and other public improvements," he said.

He also told of his interest in agriculture—that one of the objectives of his administration was better land use and an all-weather crop program, adding this could not be accomplished along state lines.

"That is why, since I have been in Washington," the president asserted, "I have been working on the agricultural and cattle program from a national angle."

Complimenting Texas—"A great empire in itself"—for cooperation in "working out mutual national problems," Mr. Roosevelt said "in this way we will get away from spotty prosperity and work towards universal prosperity."

10 INJURED AS TENT COLLAPSES

Freak Storm Hits Circus, Half of 'Big Top' Blown Over.

NEENAH, Wis.—(AP)—Ten persons were injured last night when a freak 15-minute storm caused half the tent of the Tom Mix circus to collapse. Orderly departure of 1,200 spectators prevented a larger number from being injured. No one was trampled, witnesses said.

Most seriously injured was Willard Drummond, 28, of Celina, O., a rigger, who was high on the main pole when the storm hit. He fell, broke both arms and injured his head.

The wind lifted the north part of the tent, where most of the spectators sat, and set it atop the south half.

Brothers Draw 60 Days In Jail In Chicken Theft

The first conviction in Richland county courts under the new Ohio "Rustlers" law enacted by the legislature four months ago was obtained in municipal court today.

Arraigned before Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch, two accused chicken thieves, Henry Au, 18 and his brother, James, 21, of Mifflin township, pleaded guilty to the charge and were fined $50 and costs and sentenced to 60 days each in jail.

They were arrested at their home by Deputy Sheriffs Glenn P. Freeman and C. C. Gongwer yesterday after a Mansfield merchant had reported the purchase of 11 chickens from the youths.

Questioned by the deputies concerning the sale, it was disclosed that they had taken the chickens from a coop on the farm of Avery Hale, Mifflin township, Saturday night.

The deputies said the boys also admitted looting several other chicken houses in the past month.

Under the new act, passed to protect farmers from rustlers, all transactions of livestock and fowls must be recorded and the records shall be open to all authorities. Conviction carries a maximum fine of $500 and six months jail sentence.

BLOW DOOR OFF SAFE, GET $50

Burglars Balked by Inner Door, Fail To Get Larger Loot.

FREMONT — (U.P.) — Burglars who blew a door off the safe in the Paramount theater office here early today were believed to have taken about $50 of Sunday's receipts.

Alva M. Swedersky, night watchman, said the men jimmied open a back door and walked through the theater to the offices of W. O. James, manager, on the second floor. The loot would have been larger had the burglars been able to open another door of the safe.

A Farmer's Diary

By Calvin A. Byers

THE SWIMMING HOLE

THE days and nights are warm. The sun, like a heated furnace, scorches field and garden plants. The parched earth, of heavy clay, shrinks in the heat and bakes leaving great cracks, sometimes a half inch or more wide. The harvest of wheat and hay is nearly past, and the new clover of the stubble fields curls its leaves and withers close to the soil, even in mid-forenoon.

But when evening comes and the sun hangs in the western sky like a large, red ball and cooler breezes blow . . . as soon as the chores are done, the farm boy is off to the swimming hole. The mosquitoes are along the bank, and sing about our ears that hateful high-pitched note, but they cannot disturb us long.

We hang our scanty clothes upon a willow branch, hesitate only an instant upon the bank, then dive head first into the tempting water. We look like large white frogs, leaping from the green, sheltered bank.

How fine it feels to lie upon your back and float, with little more than nostrils showing above the surface. No energy expended, no effort needed . . . but just to lie there in the soft cool bed with your face turned upward to the vast reaches of the sky.

Then to duck the other fellow first, until he yells enough . . . pretending all the while you have not heard him. And then to splash each other . . . my how the water flies!

In memory I retrace my steps to the damp water's edge, feel its moist, slippery sides, smell the fragrance of the grass and wildflowers mingled with the odor of the stream . . . float in the cool water and trudge homeward under the stars.

VACATIONING KEEPS MANSFIELDERS BUSY

Lake Erie Summer Resorts, Distant Cities Call to Many: Arrivals and Departures of House Guests Occupy Others.

THE LAKES, distant cities, resorts and nearby towns all call to the vacationists of Mansfield these warm days as many persons leave for week-ends or longer sojourns or prepare for guests in their own homes. Entertaining of a formal nature has almost ceased now as many study and philanthropic organizations have discontinued their meetings for the warmer months.

Swimming parties, steak roasts, picnics, active and spectator sports comprise the activities of many of those who are still in the city.

Among those enjoying the cooling air at Ruggles Beach on Lake Erie are Mrs. H. R. Linham and daughter, Virginia, and a friend of Virginia's, Grace Eleanor Ruby. Mrs. Linham and her daughter live on Ausdale avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Linham, Glenwood boulevard, son and daughter-in-law of Mrs. Linham, will motor to the lake Wednesday to bring the party back to Mansfield.

Sally Anne Greiwe, Lima, is visiting her aunt, Mrs. O. G. Place, 100 Glenwood boulevard. Returned from visits in other cities are Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Weaver, 31 Sherman avenue, who were recently in Chicago, Ill., and Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Proshek and daughter, Phyllis and son, Billy, 43 Western avenue, who were at Put-In-Bay over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Young, jr., Detroit, Mich., returned this week-end to their home after visiting with his father and sister, J. E. Young and Miss Florence Young, 34 Columbia avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Meuser, Upper Arlington, were the week-end guests of Dr. and Mrs. D. C. Lavender, Park avenue west. Miss Louise Layland, 111 West Fifth street, spent the last few days in Fredericktown visiting friends.

After a five-week visit in the east, Mrs. J. M. Garber, Marion avenue, has returned to Mansfield. While away she visited her son and his family, Dr. C. Zemp Garber, in New York, N. Y.

For the past two weeks Miss Louise Palmer, 213 West First street, has been visiting friends and relatives in Massachusetts. Another visitor in Massachusetts these past two weeks has been Homer Swift, Blymyer avenue, who vacationed with his parents near Boston.

Guests of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Jenkins, 26 Blanche street, are Mrs. Lawrence Holland and her daughter, Marilyn, Sioux City, Ia. Mrs. Holland is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jenkins. Another New York visitor was Mrs. F. O. Haldeman, 41 Blanche street, who spent the past two weeks visiting her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Honeberger and family at Pawling. She was accompanied home by her granddaughter, Miss Betty Honeberger, who will spend several weeks here visiting at the Haldeman home and with another grandmother, Mrs. George Hutzleman, 136 East First street.

Mrs. Bell Hostess For Family Party

Mrs. Alice Bell, West Fourth street road, entertained yesterday afternoon and evening at a family party and picnic at her home in honor of her house guests, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bell and daughter, Rosemary, Dewey, Okla. Mr. Bell is the son of Mrs. Bell.

Other out-of-town guests present were Mrs. Fay Proctor, Bartlesville; Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Kerr, Newark; Mr. and Mrs. William Cover, Zanesville; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hancock, Grafton; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Barton and son, Layne, Elyria; Rev. and Mrs. Alvin Bell and sons, Theodore, Alivin, jr., and Paul, and daughter, Lois. Town guests present were Mr. and Mrs. James H. Bell and daughter, Ruby; James Herring, Mr. and Mrs. William Bell, Mr. and Mrs. Richard J. Bell and Harry Bell.

Tiny Hats In Mid-Season Bow

PERT-Y?

Personals

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph M. Johnston, Vernum avenue, and Rev. and Mrs. Joseph W. Johnston, Mound City, Kan., left today for a motor trip to Quebec and along the coast of Maine. The Mansfield Johnstons are the son and daughter-in-law of the elder Johnstons.
